$250,000 LOVE SUIT ON TRIAL

GARMONG JURY IS DRAWN

Millionaire Clubman and His Accuser in Court at Bangor for Second Hearing of Case

Bangor, Me., April 6.—A jury was drawn today in the $250,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Elizabeth L. Garmong, formerly of Des Moines, against John B. Henderson, Washington clubman and millionaire, in the Supreme Court.

Henderson was present at the opening of court and Miss Garmong entered about 11 o'clock, taking a seat beside her counsel.

The two leading actors in the suit, which is expected by lawyers to be one of the most sensational in the history of Maine, sat at opposite sides of the courtroom, and as far as could be observed did not as much as glance at each other.

After the jury was drawn, the members were cautioned by the court not

OUSTED EMPLOYE GETS BACK PAY

Charles E. Tucker, who was discharged as cashier in the collector's department of the city of Boston, June 15, 1914, will receive back salary and interest amounting to $758.33, according to a decision of the full bench of the Supreme Court handed down today.

Tucker was discharged by City Collector John J. Curley, "in the interests of economy and to promote the efficiency of the department."

The full bench said Tucker was protected by civil service laws and was entitled to a hearing, which he did not receive. The award was made from the date of dismissal to the time Tucker became ill and was incapacitated.

TWO FIRES IN SAME HOUSE IN TWO HOURS

Fire fighting apparatus was called out twice in two hours today for fires in the six-family, wooden building, No. 51 Dimick street, Somerville. The first blaze was in an ash barrel in the cellar, which was put out with no damage. The second blaze was in a bathroom in the first floor apartments of the owner, James Lahiff, and, according to Chief Rich of the fire department, was caused by a spark from the ash barrel fire.

Nine Golden Rules of Justice Laid Down in Superior Court

JUSTICE IRWIN

Justice Irwin, in Superior Court, Middlesex County, laid down these Golden Rules of Justice to J. Frank Chase, secretary of the New England Watch and Ward Society:

1—While hating crime, do not hate, but love, the criminal.

2—Forego a mania for the sentencing of transgressors.

3—Don't find pleasure in the pain and humiliation of others.

4—Find reward for work done in the reformation of offenders.

5—Recognize bodily infirmities and mental vexations.

6—Listen to the heartbeats of humanity.

7—Don't become sour.

8—Remember the day of barbarous scourging is gone.

9—Be accurate, respectful, charitable, kindly.

Sister Fights Flames to Save 2-Year-Old Boy

Two-year-old William Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barett Gordon, No. 213 Marion street, East Boston, is in a dangerous condition at the East Boston Relief Hospital suffering from burns sustained as a result of playing with matches.

His twelve-year-old sister, Annie, who beat out the flames which almost consumed the child's clothing, was also treated for burns on the hands.

Annie was left in charge of two children while her mother went shopping today. While the girl was busy in the kitchen little William secured matches and set his clothing afire. After beating out the flames the girl wrapped her small brother in a blanket and started to carry him to the hospital, half a mile away. After covering half the distance the girl became tired, and the child was rushed the remainder of the way by Charles Houghton, who happened along at the time.

TAUNTON PROTESTS SUNDAY LICENSES

Taunton, April 6.—Vigorous protests against granting Sunday liquor licenses in this city, were made last night by both Catholic and Protestant clergymen throughout the city, at a meeting of the License Board in the City Hall.

Many petitions from churches and organizations were presented. The feeling is stronger this year than it has ever been. Those who protest say the sale of liquor in hotels and roadhouses is detrimental in many respects and that the privilege is greatly abused.

Police Hunt in Vain for 'Ghost' From Cemetery

Dorchester police today tried to solve the mystery of a nocturnal stranger in the Norfolk street cemetery for whom they searched several hours last night.

About midnight a woman living on Westfield street phoned Station 11 and told Lieutenant Keane this story:

"I just saw a man emerge from a grave in the Norfolk street cemetery. I think he pushed over a tombstone. He was shrouded in mourning tweeds and staggered on the Franklin Field Speedway and fell."

The woman was positive of what she saw, so Lieutenant Keane reported the story to Lieutenant O'Neil of Station 19, and Sergeant Murphy and a squad of reserves were posted to the scene in an auto patrol.

The police searched the cemetery and surrounding district without result. They couldn't even find an open grave. The woman who gave the alarm was found and questioned, but stuck to her story.

The police have no clews, but several theories.

REFORMATORY FOR YOUNG GERMAN

In the Municipal Court today, charged with the larceny of $2, Carl Sperka, the son of a German glove manufacturer, was found guilty and sentenced to Concord reformatory.

Sperka came to the United States from Germany two years ago, to learn business conditions in this country. Sperka secured employment in a downtown department store. He was later charged with larceny from his employers and was held on a suspended sentence.

Sperka was arrested yesterday on a charge that he secured $2 from David S. Beyer of the Massachusetts Employe's Insurance Company on false representations.

9 GOLDEN RULES FOR CRUSADER

Watch and Ward Secretary Told Society Should Be Charitable, Humane, Accurate, Not 'Sour'

Judge Richard William Irwin of the Massachusetts Superior Court furnished, upon request of the AMERICAN today, the exact language of the nine so-called "Golden Rules" which he laid down in administering a severe rebuke at East Cambridge to Rev. J. Frank Chase, secretary of the New England Watch and Ward Society.

In the course of his rebuke Judge Irwin said:

"If authorized to do so I should enjoin upon the active agencies of this society a set of precepts, which I would have written in letters of gold and hung upon the walls of their offices." (The precepts are printed in another column.)

REBUKES SECRETARY.

Also, in the course of his words to the Watch and Ward secretary, Judge Irwin used phrases like these:

"Don't think that all wisdom, knowledge and charity is bound up in the officers of a reform society.

"If you had not come here you would have been brought."

In speaking today of the rebuke to Chase, which was administered yesterday afternoon, Judge Irwin said:

"I did not desire any publicity in this matter. I asked Mr. Chase to come here at 9.30 in the morning and I intended to talk to him in my lobby. He wrote me that he could not be there at 9:30, but would probably be there by ten. It was not until 2 o'clock that he appeared and I had to talk to him in the court room."

Last July Judge Irwin sat in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court in Boston. A number of so-called "drug cases" were brought in by the Watch and Ward Society, which charged sales of habit-forming drugs on the street. One of the defendants, a young man, was found guilty by the jury. He was placed on probation by Judge Irwin.

CHASE WROTE LETTER.

Chase later wrote a letter to a woman, a member of the habit-forming drug committee of the Public Health Association, of which Chase is a member. This letter, in the course of time, got back to Judge Irwin's attention.

Judge Irwin claimed that not only did Chase criticise his conduct, but

ALLIED AIRSHIPS BOMBARD TURKS

By International News Service.

Athens, April 6.—Turkish encampments near Smyrna and Fort Kastlaki, guarding the entrance to the Gulf of Smyrna, were bombarded by a squadron of allied aeroplanes yesterday and badly damaged. The cantonments were at Vourla and in the outskirts of Smyrna. Many Turks were killed. All the machines returned safely.

MEXICANS QUIT HUNT FOR VILLA

Carranzista Forces Withdrawn from Bandit Chase and Sent to Juarez; Hint U. S. Should Leave

By International News Service.

El Paso, Texas, April 6.—Andreas Garcia, Carranza consul in El Paso declared today that all American troops should be withdrawn from border.

Not only should the troops at the border be returned to their home stations, but the expedition into Mexico should be recalled, said the consul.

"The American expedition has done all it can," said Senor Garcia today. "It should be taken out of Mexico at once. It has had its triumphal march. There has been no interference from Carranzista troops. It has done what it set out to do. It has scattered Villa's band—the band that raided Columbus. There can be no criticism. It is best that they be withdrawn. The less delay the more the United States government will save."

Queretaro, Mex., April 6.—First Chief Carranza today received at Hacienda San Bartolo a diplomatic communication from the American government believed to ask the unlimited use of Mexican railways by American troops. The note was first presented at the Foreign Office here, but had to be forwarded to San Bartolo.

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, April 6.—Five hundred more Carranzista troops arrived in Juarez during the night, according to reports reaching here today. The eight cars carrying soldiers withdrawn from the campaign against Francisco Villa were brought into the Mexican town under cover of darkness.

The reason for taking these soldiers from the southern garrision just at the moment when Carranzista officials claim the capture of Villa is only a matter of three days or so is not known in El Paso, but this city is becoming more than ever the central point of the border situation.

2 Killed, 48 Missing as U-Boat Sinks Steamer

London, April 6.—The British steamer Zent, en route from South American ports to England, has been sunk by a submarine, it was announced today.

A dispatch from Queenstown says that the Zent was torpedoed without warning and that the men who are missing number 48. Two men were killed by the explosion of the torpedo.

The Zent was an unarmed merchantman. Efforts were made to launch the boats after it was torpedoed, but some were capsized, and all the forty-eight missing men are believed to have drowned. The steamer sank quickly, and the few srvivors who reached Qeenstown strggled in the water for some time before they were able to right a boat.

The Zent was of 3,890 tons displacement and was built in 1907. She hailed from Belfast.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS.

Bucharest, April 6.—Official announcement was made today that the Roumanian Parliament would remain in session for the rest of April. This is attributed to sudden developments in the relations between Roumania and Buugaria. Bucharest newspapers publish a dispatch stating that six Bulgarian divisions (120,000 men) have been concentrated at the frontier to attack Dobrudja. This information has not been officially confirmed, but the Roumanian government is taking the necessary military measures.

London, April 6.—Examination of the official War Office reports show that the Germans lost forty-two aeroplanes during the month of March, instead of fourteen, as they announced in their official report yesterday.

Paris, April 6.—A German submarine was sunk yesterday by a squadron of French and British warships, the Ministry of Marine announced last night. The crew of the submarine was captured.

German Airmen Wreck Plant in Raid on England

By International News Service.

Berlin, April 6.—The German Admiralty announced today that German naval airships last night destroyed with bombs a large English iron works plant near Whitby on the east coast of England, wrecked a British battery north of Hull and attacked factories at Leeds and in the surrounding district. All the airships returned safely.

The statement issued by the German Admiralty follows:

"German naval airships during the night of April 5-6 destroyed a large iron works plant with its blast furnaces and other extensive establishments near Whitby, after having first put out of commission with exploding bombs a battery north of Hull.

"The raiders further attacked factories at Leeds and in the surrounding district as well as several railroad stations in this industrial district.

"Good effects were observed from the bombardment. The airships were heavily shelled, but all returned undamaged."

London, April 6. — The Zeppelin that attempted to raid the northeast coast of England last evening is reported to have been struck and seriously damaged by a shell fired by one of the anti-aircraft guns, mounted for defence. The Zeppelin disappeared, but appeared to be in difficulty. Crowds cheered in the streets of the town over which the airship was sighted as the shell appeared to strike it amidships.

DEMANDS ISSUED BY DUTCH

Want Mail Seized by British Returned and Ask Berlin to Explain Troops on the Border

By International News Service.

The Hague, April 6.—Holland has demanded from England the return of valuable securities and documents seized in the mails taken from Dutch ships by vessels of the British Navy.

Official announcement to this effect was made today. At the same time the government issued for publication the diplomatic communications exchanged by England and Holland over the seizure of mails on Dutch ships.

The attitude of the Dutch government is that under no conditions are belligerents entitled to seize Dutch papers. It holds that the parcel post is not as inviolate by the terms of The Hague convention as the letter post, but believes that in the term "correspondence postals" was undoubtedly included consignments of securities, coupons and other valuable papers.

Holland's demands to England include restitution for more than $11,000,000 worth of American securities, which were seized on board Dutch ships. The securities were being sent back to the United States by Dutch brokers, bankers and individuals.

In a note to the German Foreign Office Holland has asked for an explanation of the concentration of troops on the Dutch bor er.

There is no abatement in public tension over the war scare and the newspapers' comment today upon the secret meeting of the general committee of the Second Chamb r yesterday is far from reassuring. Certain newspapers are insistently demanding to know from what quarter Holland expects her neutrality to be menaced and also to know what secret information has been received by the government that has led it to make extensive preparations for hostilities.

CAPTURE HAUCOURT IN VERDUN DRIVE

By International News Service.

London, April 6.—German troops have taken by storm the village of Haucourt, on the northwest front of Verdun, and also the position constituting an important point of support to the eastward.

The German War Office announced today that the operations against Verdun were proceeding methodically and with continued success, according to all the official reports. The success at Haucourt menaces with complete envelopment of the French forces that hold the salient of which Bethincourt is the northernmost point.

The French admit the loss of Haucourt, but declare the Germans were repulsed at other points with great losses.

The German War Office statement follows:

"Western theatre of war—West of the Meuse there was lively activity throughout the day on account of the fire which we directed against Haucourt. The afternoon was also active. We took by storm the village of Haucourt and the fortified French point of support east of the village.

FRENCH RENEW ATTACK.

"On the Meuse the French renewed their attack against positions which we captured April 2 in Caillette forest. The attack was checked.

"In the fighting at Haucourt the enemy suffered sanguinary losses. The prisoners taken by us were unwounded and belonged to two different divisions.

The text of the French official communique follows:

"In the Argonne a surprise attack executed by us this morning against the enemy's trench on the St. Hubert road enabled us to inflict appreciable losses on our adversary and to bring back twenty prisoners. While this attack was being made our artillery in the neighboring sector violently bombarded the section of Avocourt wood held by the Germans.

"In the region of Verdun the enemy, after the comparative calm of the afternoon, showed great activity in the evening and during the night. West of the Meuse a most violent bombardment was directed against the region between Avocourt and Bethincourt. This was followed by a series of attacks with large effectives against the two principal salients of this front on our right.

HAUCOURT TAKEN.

All the efforts of the enemy against the village of Bethincourt were broken down by our fire. At the same time the enemy attacked fiercely in the centre, the village of Haucourt. After repeated checks and sanguinary sacrifices he gained a foothold during the night in that village, which we now have under fire from our dominating positions.

"For our part, after a brief artillery preparation we launched a sharp attack debouching from the Avocourt redoubt with the purpose of connecting the redoubt with one of our works located on the edge of the northeast section of Avocourt wood.

"In the course of this operation, which was completely successful, we captured a large section of ground called Carre Wood and took fifty prisoners.

"East of the Meuse, two enemy attacks directed against our positions north of Caillette wood and had no other result than to cost the Germans serious losses.

"There is nothing to report on the rest of the front."

BRITISH TAKE TURK POSITION ON TIGRIS

London, April 6.—A victory for the British over the Turks on the Tigris below Kut-el-Amara has been reported by General Lake, in command of the British army there.

The Turkish intrenched position at Umm-el-Henna was attacked and carried by the Tigris Corps, General Lake telegraphed, and the operations are proceeding satisfactorily.

The capture of Umm-el-Henna, which is about twenty miles from Kut-el-Amara, is the most important news from this theatre in some time and is regarded here as giving promise of the early relief of General Townsend's force, besieged in Kut-el-Amara since the first week in December.

ACCUSE GERMAN CONSUL OF FRAUD

Washington, April 6.—The Department of Justice announced today it is planing to seek the indictment of Carl A. Luderitz, German Consul at Baltimore, on a charge of fraudulently obtaining an American passport. It is charged that he was the man who obtained a passport supposed to be for "Bridgeman Taylor," and which was used by Horst von der Goltz when he fled from this country in the Fall of 1914.

WAR SUMMARY

Infantry fighting about Verdun has been continuous for several days, today's reports indicate. Just what the result of the latest fighting has been is in doubt. The French claim to have gained by counter-attacks; the Germans claim these counter-attacks were repulsed.

Both French and Germans agree, however, that the past week has netted the Germans a gain of about one mile on a three-mile front in the Haucourt region, and that the Germans have been driven southward for something like a mile from Fort Douaumont toward the Caillette wood.

Since those original gains the battle line has remained stationary, or has varied slightly under the tremendous pressure of the attacks by one side and the other.

Incidentally, a special dispatch from Paris today says that the Verdun operations have been a gigantic German feint, by which it was hoped to draw a disproportionate French force to that fortress and allow another attack elsewhere. During the fighting at Verdun there have been repeated "feeling out" attacks elsewhere on the line, which lend color to this report.

There are unofficial reports from Petrograd, pieced out by brief mention in the official bulletins, which indicate the beginning of a German offensive in the Riga district. The capture of that city would immensely strengthen the German lines in Poland from a defensive point of view, and would at the same time simplify the advance along the Baltic toward Petrograd.

The British force which set out months ago to relieve the beleaguered force at Kut-el-Amara has won a considerable success twenty miles down the river from that city, according to British official bulletins.

The speech in the Reichstag of the German chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, started peace talk again today. The German chancellor said, in effect, that the Germans are ready to discuss peace at any time, and that so long as the allies refuse to discuss peace it is they, not Germany, who must accept responsibility for the continuance of the war.

Holland appears to be uneasy, mobilizing and preparing for war if war becomes necessary. Whether she will enter the war at all, and if she does, whether she will fight Germany or England, are puzzles that can only be solved by the actual occurrence. She has suffered from England's blockade strictures—illegal—and she has also suffered from Germany's submarine campaign — also illegal. Either set of circumstances would suffice as a pretext for war. As to the effect of her entering the war: If she sides with Germany, Germany will lose the imports that have come through Holland, and if she sides against Germany, Germany must defend a new frontier. In either case, Germany seems bound to suffer if Holland enters. Holland may be forced into the war against her will either by a German invasion, designed to anticipate similar action by England, or by an English invasion, designed to throw a new British army on Germany's flank and rear in Belgium. Of all the neutrals, Holland has had the hardest part to play, and has played it, perhaps, best of all.

URGES MILITIA TRANSFER BILL

A bill giving the Governor power to transfer the State militia to the federal army, provided members of the militia assent, is endorsed in a letter made public today and signed by Robert L. Raymond and Walton A. Green of the Massachusetts Commission on Military Education and Reserve, and by President Charles W. Lyons of Boston College, President Alexander Meiklejohn of Amherst, J. Frank O'Hare, Major-Generals William A. Pew and William Stopford, Brigadier-General John J. Sullivan and Mayor Harold Sweet of Attleboro.

The letter reads in part:

The proposed legislation is permissive merely; it makes it possible for the State militia to become the backbone of the national defense outside the regular army, but allows a wholly free choice to every officer and man.

We do not think we exaggerate in saying that if this bill is passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor it will be one of the most important steps yet taken in the line of national defense. It is in accord with the strongly expressed views of Ex-Secretaries of War Garrison, Stimson and Root. It represents the convictions of practically every recognized expert on military affairs. It meets the wishes of an overwhelming majority of the officers and men of our own militia. It is the only real solution of the problem of the citizen fighting force of the country.

If the bill is passed promptly it will be a vital factor in determining the action of Congress. At this very moment a vigorous fight is being made in the United States Senate for legislation exactly in line with this bill. The co-operation of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts may turn the scale in that fight.

Our willingness here to disregard petty and selfish considerations in behalf of national strength and honor will give heart to those who are striving to make the life of the nation secure. Only by subordinating the State to the nation can we serve the country in these times of uncertainty and stress.

Copenhagen, April 6.—It is reported that the Germans are attempting to force an entrance to the Gulf of Riga.

HUNT ESCAPED PRISONER AS GUNMAN

The vigorous search which has been made by the Boston police to capture the gunman who entered the shop of the United Cigar Stores Company at No. 118 Canal street, near the North Station, and held up the clerk, Vincenzo Scaramella, at the point of a revolver, forcing him to turn over the contents of the cash register, amounting to $80, has led the police to believe the man wanted is "Handsome Harry" Dean, well known as a forger and one of the prisoners who recently escaped from a van after a desperate struggle with two Providence officers.

The police have been on the track of Dean and two other of the escaped prisoners, Daniel Leavens and William Goddard, pals of Dean, have been in a Boston suburb for several days, it became known today.

The description given the police by the clerk in the cigar store corresponds with that of Dean. The gunman, according to the clerk, was about twenty-five years old, five feet four inches tall, smooth-shaven and weight about 140 pounds.

TO ACT WITHOUT WAITING ON BERLIN

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, April 6.—Unless Germany has accepted responsibility for the attack on the Channel steamer Sussex by the time the bulk of the evidence dealing with the case reaches the State Department it is expected that the United States will act without waiting on Berlin.

Both President Wilson and Secretary Lansing are understood to agree that the summaries of the affidavits, the originals of which now are en route to the State Department, and due next week, showed conclusively that the Sussex was damaged by a torpedo attack. The British and French official reports also emphasize this fact, while the French authorities have turned over to the American ambassador parts of what they declare is a torpedo found in the wrecked bow of the liner.

There is a growing belief here, however, that before the end of this week Germany will accept responsibility for the attack, explain that it was due to a mistake, disavow it, and promise any reparation which the United States may desire to exact. If this is done the President and Secretary Lansing will be prepared to reopen the general submarine situation, make it emphatic that mistakes of that character cannot be overlooked, and demand to know what steps Germany is prepared to take that will prevent them taking place again.

As a very high official discussing the matter said: "If the Sussex was torpedoed in the face of the past promises that were made by Germany to the United States, it is up to Germany to show the United States the value of these promises."

Officials continued reluctant today to discuss the plans of this government for bringing the submarine controversy to a head. It is generally accepted, however, that it is up to Germany. The United States will not make any additional concessions, it is stated. Unless Germany of her own volition shall take steps to bring about a new and real understanding the United States will break off diplomatic relations.

In Teutonic circles here it is insisted that Germany is ready to do everything possible to prevent any break, but that, like the United States, she is compelled to await all of the facts.

DECISION NEAR IN PRIZE COURT CASES

By International News Service.

London, April 6.—Lloyd Griscom, counsel for the American packers in the confiscation cases in the British prize court, said today that he expected a decision within the next few days. Mr. Griscom has already booked passage for New York and will sail at the end of next week. As to the prize court cases, he said: "I hope the result will be satisfactory to both sides. The decision would have been forthcoming earlier but for small points which arose, making a re-discussion of them necessary."

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

A Kansas City Lady Darkened Her Gray Hair and Stimulated Its Growth by a Simple Home Process.

She Tells How She Did It.

A well-known resident of Kansas City, Mo., who darkened her gray hair by a simple home process, made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, stimulate its growth and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently, then every two weeks. This mixture relieves scalp troubles and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair. It does not stain the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray haired person look 10 to 20 years younger.

Compulsion for Married Before British Cabinet

By International News Service.

London, April 6.—The vital question of extending conscription to married men throughout the British Isles, including Ireland, is under discussion by the Cabinet.

"There is great anxiety among the ministers whether to favor an extension of the compulsory service act or not," says the Times. "If the parliamentary situation is difficult the demands of the War Office are inexorable. The fact is that the army needs more men to win the war than can be supplied by the military service act and the Derby recruiting scheme, and it is impossible to believe that its appeals will not be answered in full by the Cabinet.

"The decision should be made within the next few days and Parliament will then be called upon to transact serious business before the Easter recess."

NOT FIXING PRICES, SAYS ICE DEALER

A two-day convention of the Ice Dealers' Association of Massachusetts is in session at the American House, under the presidency of R. G. Hopkins of Boston.

Mr. Hopkins said the gathering has nothing to do with the fixing of the price of ice for the coming season.

"This is simply an assembly of ice dealers," said Mr. Hopkins, "for them to hear papers on the welfare of their trade, to see exhibits of ice harvesting appliances and for social purposes. We have nothing to do with fixing prices. Each man in the business does that for himself."

L. W. Cole of New York, secretary of the National Ice Dealers' Association of America, read a paper this afternoon on "The Increased Cost of Doing Business."

This was followed by a question box period.

The convention will meet again tomorrow. David A. Brown of Detroit will read a paper.

Harold W. Wood of Hudson, N. Y., will speak on "Three Recent Developments in the Harvesting of Ice."

A banquet in the evening will end the convention.

GERMANS HAIL PRINCIPLES OF CHANCELLOR

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, April 6.—Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech in the Reichstag yesterday created a profound impression throughout Germany and was hailed today by the press as an expression of the utmost aims and sentiments of the German people, both at home and at the front. Members of all parties have united in expressing approval.

The speech, it is declared, shows that Germany is not seeking her own aggrandizement but the preservation of her national life. Furthermore, it is said that Germany stands ready to discuss peace terms, so that it cannot be claimed that this nation is responsible for a prolongation of the strife.

Herr Spahn of the Catholic party declared in an interview that he is fully in accord with all the principles set forth by the chancellor.

Herr Ebert of the Socialist party was even more vigorous in his language, saying:

"Our enemies, especially the Socialists in enemy countries, decline to consider peace, but insist upon the annihilation of Germany. Therefore, it is the duty of all Germans to stand together firmly in support of the government and the defence of the country.

"As to the question of annexation: Germany is unable to give back Poland, which she has now freed, and other Lithuanian provinces, to the yoke of reactionary Russia. This is to be understood in the light of the Chancellor's speech:

"Germany does not want to crush other races, but wants as a basis for peace the full development of European civilization."

FIND NEW GRETNA GREEN

Portsmouth, N. H., April 6.—Despite the alleged handicap of a five-day law, this city claims to have superior attractions as a "Gretna Green," and the assertion is made that when the facts are known Bellows Falls, Vt., will be deserted by elopers.

It is pointed out that prospective elopers may telephone or write to Portsmouth for a marriage application, and then after waiting five days, journey to this city at a small comparative cost and be married. At Bellows Falls, on the other hand, although no wait is necessary, the total cost, including carfares and meals, is about $30.

The latest marriages following elopements to this city were those of Miss Sadie Jolles of Roxbury, Mass., to Edward Aronson of Chelsea, Mass., and Miss Gladys Pitman Boardman of Danvers, Mass., to Roy Leo Armstrong, also of Danvers.

The latter marriage was the culmination of a shoe factory romance. Miss Boardman, who is thirty years old, was employed as a forelady in the factory of Mr. Armstrong, who is a well-known shoe manufacturer at Danvers. They were married by the Rev. Dr. L. H. Thayer of the Congregational Church.

The other couple were married by Rabbi Harry Liberson. The bride gave her age as twenty years, and her occupation bookkeeper, while the groom is nineteen years old, and a salesman.

Poisoner Waite Is Ready to Pay the Penalty

'I Alone Am Guilty of the Crime Charged'

New York, April 6.—The first complete confession of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite was made public today. He declared that he was sane, that he fully realized what he had done, and was willing, even eager, to pay the penalty.

He insisted that he alone was guilty of the poison plot, which was stopped only after his mother-in-law, Mrs. John E. Peck, and his father-in-law had become his victims. In his plot he used first disease germs and then arsenic.

He said calmly and dispassionately:

I alone am guilty of the crime with which I am charged.

In full possession of all my faculties, I declare here and now that I am willing, nay, willing and eager to pay to the limit the penalty society demands of me.

AMBITION TO BLAME.

I do not wish to say one word that will lessen that penalty because I expect to pass into a new world, although I hope to get a new start and atone for my misdeeds.

I sinned because of restless ambition. Nothing that I might say or do at this time will excuse or explain that sin. Expiation is now my prayer.

I am not afraid for the future. Just as I worked out my crime schemes in my own mind, I have been lying here planning for the future—the future that lies beyond the grave.

I do not wish to pose as a philosopher and to give advice to others who may find themselves in the position in which I find myself. The experience that I am passing through may come to others. Every one must face such problems for himself.

READY FOR PENALTY.

There isn't much I can say to you, gentlemen, he said with a smile.

Did I write a confession and sign it? I wrote something, but I don't recall just what it was. I don't feel that I should go into all details at present, some things will all come out later.

I wish to say now that I realize to the full the crime that I have committed, and I am ready and willing to pay the extreme penalty for that crime.

I do not want to evade in any way paying the price for anything I have done. If I could utter one word that could save me from paying this penalty, I would not utter that word.

Society expects me to pay the penalty and I say to you now, as I will say to the authorities later, that I am ready.

SURE HE IS SANE.

At least a dozen times during the twenty-five-minute interview the self-controlled man on the cot spoke of his desire to "pay the penalty." He said it in the most detached way.

"Have you written the story of your life?" he was asked.

"Hardly that," replied Waite, the light smile pencilling the corners of his mouth. "I have been preparing something for Dr. Karpas."

"Do you consider yourself sane?"

Waite stroked his hair a moment. Then he responded:

"I suppose I am as sane as any one in the world. I am sane and want to expiate my crime."

KNEW WHAT HE WAS DOING.

"Nevertheless, looking back on the events of the last half year, does it not seem to you now that these criminal acts were the acts of some other person than yourself?"

"No," he replied. "I knew what I was doing. I went into the thing with my eyes open. I admit that some things are not clear. But I do not attempt to persuade myself that I did not know what I was doing."

"What was your purpose?"

"I don't want to go into that now. This will all come out at the trial. I accept fullest responsibility."

"Did any living soul know of your plans?"

"Absolutely no one."

"Why did you experiment with germs?"

ASKED ABOUT STUDIO MATE.

"That is another matter I don't care to discuss now."

"You had made certain plans for the future?"

"Yes."

"Did these plans include Mrs. Margaret Horton?"

"No."

"Did you intend to kill Miss Catherine Peck?"

Waite's eyes left the ceiling. He chuckled.

"You have a great imagination," was the only reply he vouchsafed.

"Are you a bigamist?" was the next question.

"No, I am not a bigamist."

"What about the 'South African mother'?"

"She is the mother of Mr. Steyn, custodian of two farms I own in South Africa," replied the prisoner.

NO DREAD OF THE BEYOND.

"Is there anything in the next life you are afraid of?"

"No," he replied. "I have worked the future out very clearly in my own mind. I have no dread of what lies beyond the grave. That is one reason why I want you gentlemen to make it clear to the public that I am not seeking to avoid the penalty for my acts. If I try to avoid any part of the penalty, I will not be getting a fresh start in the other world."

"Then you accept a theosophical point of view?"

"MAN FROM EGYPT" TABOOED.

"Not exactly that," responded Waite. "But I do hope and pray that I will get a fresh start in the other world."

"How about the 'Man from Egypt?'"

Waite turned to Dr. Gregory and said with a smile:

"Dr. Gregory understands about that."

At this point the Bellevue alienist warned the interviewers to curtail their questions.

"Did you intend to commit suicide when you took the drugs?" was the next question.

"No indeed" replied Waite. "If I had wanted to commit suicide I could have done it in a much quicker way. It was not a part of my plan to kill myself. I don't believe that would be the right thing for me to do. I think my life should be forfeited to society.

"I have suffered from insomnia for years and I have grown into the habit of taking sleeping potions."

"Do you believe with Augusta Evans Wilson that 'remorse is man's dread prerogative'?"

Mrs. Waite, whose suit was filed in Grand Rapids, Mich., charges cruelty, mentions the poison plot against her parents, and names Mrs. Margaret Horton, Waite's studio companion, and "others unknown to the plaintiff." Waite's cruelty began soon after their marriage, the Peck heiress charges.

WIFE DECLARES WAITE PROVED HYPOCRITE

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 6.—An intimate glance into the life of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Waite during the period that Waite was negotiating the death of John E. Peck and his wife, was given today when Mrs. Waite related several incidents to a girl friend.

"Since Arthur's confession," she declared, "features of our life have recurred to me which are almost too horrible for belief. It comes to me almost as the hazy aftermath of a dream. Why, I remember when mother, just before her death, experienced several chills that Arthur sat by the hour and sympathized with her.

"Once, only a few days before she died, she complained of having cold feet and Arthur immediately went out and purchased a foot warmer for her. He seemed to be so solicitous of her comfort that he neglected me to care for her. He bought her flowers every day, even up to the Saturday before she died.

URGED BY MOTHER.

"It was through mother that he gained consent to marry me. I don't believe I should ever have married him but for her. I knew him in school and then when I met him on his return from South Africa he was very pleasant. But he paid little attention to me. His time was all for mother. He sat with her and told her stories of his accomplishments, and he had her completely won over in a short time.

"She suggested the marriage, telling me that it would be an excellent match and that I would be pleasing her if I consented. I was averse at first, because father and Percy, my brother, were not favorable to the idea. We used to talk it over frequently and then father and brother gave in to mother's wishes even though they insisted that I should investigate his past. After a time he began to lavish his attention on me, and with mother's helping influence he succeeded in winning me.

"And now after all that, and with the murder of my father and mother on his hands, he declares that I will go and see him. It can never be. His anguish now is just a part of the suffering that he deserves and I can never make myself believe that I should mitigate his suffering by sympathy with him.

"AFFECTION ERASED."

"When I filed my bill for divorce I had my mind thoroughly made up. I was absolutely sure of my position. It is all over now and the main idea with me is to forget. And that is what he had best do.

"If the woman, Margaret Horton, had been the only issue in this case I could gladly have forgiven Arthur for his conduct, but I cannot overlook his crimes. I loved my parents better than any other persons, and in robbing me of them he erased my affection for him."

Mrs. Waite is still confined to her home and is growing haggard under the strain. She takes little food and her sleep is fitful.

Percy Peck declared today that the cost of the investigation which led to the arrest of Waite cost him more than $5,000. He furnished the funds used in the work.

COURT GIVES 9 GOLDEN RULES TO CRUSADER

also misquoted remarks made by Judge Irwin when he placed this defendant on probation last July.

In the letter which Chase wrote was this language:

"At the time of the disposition of a large drug case the judge, instead of imposing sentence, let the man off on probation, much to our disappointment."

When Chase came into the East Cambridge courthouse at 2 o'clock Judge Irwin was trying a civil case. This was interrupted while the judge attended to the Chase matter. In rebuking Chase Judge Irwin quoted excerpts from letters which the judge had written in answer to letters written to him relative to letters Chase had written.

Chase, at the first of it, started to talk in his own behalf, saying that this case came at the end of about fifty prosecutions, that the case had been "gathered with great care," and that included in the list of defendants were two believed to be ringleaders in illegal drug selling. He said that Watch and Ward workers had undergone threats and menaces.

Judge Irwin told of an experience he had while presiding in the Suffolk superior Court last July. He said:

"I paid a visit to Deer Island during the term of the court and spent a night there. I was surprised to find that there were 100 drug users confined there. While at the institution I learned of the methods used by those drug users to smuggle the dope in there, and one man committed suicide by jumping from the fourth balcony to the stone floor below."

Continuing he told of the case of a young man caught selling drugs in the streets.

In discussing the case of this young man yesterday, Judge Irwin said:

"From the reforms, such as these societies sought in this particular case, in the words of the Melancholy Dane: 'Angels and ministers of grace defend us.'"

SLAVE TO HABIT.

"He was a slave to a pernicious drug," said Judge Irwin, "and was in no sense a degenerate. He was not incorrigible or vicious. He had a home and a sorrowful mother and sister. He appealed to me and I believed him worth saving. I asked what treatment is there that might help drug users. I sought expert information. In due course the District Attorney moved for sentence without making any recommendation. I placed the young man on probation, in charge of Probation Officer O'Keefe. It was understood the young man was to take a treatment to break up the use of the pernicious drug.

"To commit that boy to prison would have been more of an offence than the one committed. The evil done belongs to the past. Probation is not letting a man off; it means holding him off; it means putting an offender on the road to reformation and preventing him being branded with the scarlet letter of shame. This young man has gained twenty-seven pounds and has red blood in his cheeks. If sent to Deer Island he would have been ruined for life."

Chase at this juncture interrupted the court to say that he did not believe the young man was making good, that he was still associating with a crowd of drug users.

Judge Irwin said:

"I now warn you if you ever assume such an attitude again it will not be the question of a fine of $50, but something more."

Chase interrupted again with:

"Well, I came here, Your Honor—"

Judge Irwin broke in on him by saying:

"If you hadn't come here you would have been brought here. Don't think that all wisdom, knowledge and charity is bound up in the officers of a reform society."

Mr. Chase, concluding, said:

"I am fighting the drug habit. My heart is bleeding over it."

"Yes," replied Judge Irwin, "but remember there are other hearts bleeding, too."

HAD A 'GIRL ROUND THE CORNER'

By International News Service.

Newark, N. J., April 6.—How a pretty maid and "the little girl around the corner" wrecked her home and happiness was recited in the divorce court here by Mrs. Ella S. Smith. She is suing Ernest N. Smith, employed in a Wall Street broker's office, for separation.

"Once I put my arms around my husband and kissed him," Mrs. Smith testified. "He was angry, knocked me aside and said: 'There is only one woman in the world who has a right to do that; you are not that woman.'

"I was forced to discharge a pretty maid who worked in our home because of my husband's conduct.

FROM AROUND THE CORNER.

"It was not easy to discharge her either," Mrs. Smith asserted. "The maid did not leave when I told her to. That night she put her arms around my husband at the supper table and said: 'You won't let me leave, will you, Mr. Smith?'"

"What did your husband say to that?" asked the wife's counsel.

"He didn't dare to say anything, and the maid left that night."

The following letter from the "little girl around the corner," was found in her husband's pocket, according to Mrs. Smith:

> Dear Edward:—Just a few lines to let you know that I am feeling fine. Eddie, don't you care for me any more? If not I wish you would tell me, for my heart is broken.

"MOTHER'S LAP," TOO.

> Do you remember the other night when you were sitting on mother's lap and singing that pretty song and making eyes at me. Now you know that I love, don't you think.
>
> Eddie, my birthday was yesterday, and I thought I would see you, but I got left. Say, dear, wait we get married and you can buy me a motor car, diamond ring and lots of things. I know you have lots of money and I am going to pull your leg for you.

FOURTH ARREST IN LOOTING CRUSADE

The fourth arrest in the crusade of the police of the Court square station to stop the looting of merchandise by teamsters and their helpers was made when Jeremiah Casey, forty-five, of Sixth street, South Boston, was booked up charged with the larceny of property valued at $170.

Casey, a teamster, was taken from his wagon on the water front by Sergeant Lacey, Special Officer Trayers and Patrolman John Manning. The charge against Casey is the larceny of 800 sandals and 250 rolls of electric tape.

The other three arrests were Walter E. Kirwin, twenty-three, of East Eighth street, South Boston, charged with larceny; Patrick J. Donovan, thirty-one, of Sydney street, Dorchester, and Charles E. Wilson, with receiving the stolen goods. All pleaded not guilty and were held till next Wednesday.

Barclay Ward of Huntington, only a few thousand dollars of which remain.

SAYS BIG NAVY MEANS WAR WITH ENGLAND

By International News Service.

Chicago, April 6.—War with England will result if the United States continues its policy of building the world's most powerful navy, predicted G. Lowes Dickinson in an address at the University of Chicago. Mr. Dickinson is a fellow of King's College, Cambridge, England. He declared that Britain could not, by virtue of its geographical location and its extended commercial activities, permit another power to control the sea. It would give battle first, he asserted.

MILLIONS TO COAST DEFENCE

By International News Service.

Washington, April 6.—The fortifications bill—second of the six preparedness measures—was reported favorably to the House today. It carries direct appropriations of $21,597,016 and authorizes the War Department to enter into contracts amounting to $12,690,000—a total of $34,287,016—by far the largest bill of this sort ever brought before Congress. Last year the bill carried about $6,000,000.

The outstanding features of the bill are these:

Huge increases in reserve ammunition for field, seacoast and siege cannon based on European standards.

The adoption of anti-aircraft guns.

Acquirement of the exclusive rights and installation of the Hammond radio-controlled torpedo.

Fortification of New York and Chesapeake Bays with sixteen-inch guns.

Fortification of Boston, San Francisco, Hawaii and the Philippines with twelve-inch guns having a range of 30,000 yards.

Completion of the fortification of Los Angeles and San Diego.

Appropriation of $1,000,000 to equip private plants with the tools and machines necessary to manufacture standard munitions for the army.

$10,000,000 FOR SHELLS.

Provision that government arsenals shall be operated at their full economic capacity.

Changes in gun mounting to give existing coast defence cannon greater range.

Secret hearings of the committee made public today disclosed that the European war has convinced army officers that the ammunition reserve, good for only two hours, was hopelessly inadequate. The bill provides $10,000,000 for the purchase of shells for field and seacoast guns for the regular army. Last year this item was $1,210,000.

The new scheme of fortifying the country and insular possessions was disclosed in the report. The plan provides for an eventual expenditure of $28,175,000 for continental United States and the insular possessions and $12,998,000 for the Panama Canal, and does not take into account fortifying Alaska, Guam and Guantanamo.

It recommends that future direct fire coast artillery guns should be at least 16-inch rifles and that seacoast mortars installed in the future should be of the same calibre. Provision is made for the construction of an experimental 16-inch mobile mortar and one 14-inch direct fire gun mounted on a railroad car for the defence of unfortified harbors.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS.

Sixty-four anti-aircraft guns are provided, ten of them for installation in Hawaii and in the Philippines. The bill appropriates $750,000 for acquiring the exclusive rights to the radio-controlled torpedo perfected by John Hays Hammond, Jr., and installation of one unit, preferably at Fisher's Island, N. Y.

The complete general scheme for fortifying the harbors of the country recommended the ultimate purchase and installation of twenty-two 16-inch guns. Six are provided in the bill, four of them to be placed at Cape Henry, at the entrance to Chesapeake Bay, and two at Rockaway Beach for the protection of New York city and the bay.

Boston and San Francisco are to be further fortified by mounting 12-inch guns on barbette carriages allowing "high angle" fire and making possible an effective range of 30,000 yards. Seven are authorized in the bill. Seventeen more are provided in the plan of the board of review.

Six guns of this type will be mounted in the defences of Hawaii and two in the Philippines. On its own initiative the committee included in the bill $1,000,000 to equip private munitions plants with jigs, dies, tools and machinery necessary for the manufacture of American guns and other ammunitions.

Experiments by army ordnance experts showed that effective range of existing coast artillery could be increased about 50 per cent by changing the mountings to permit a greater elevation of the guns. The bill provides appropriations for raising the possible angle of elevation of most of the direct-fire guns and for the construction of barbette gun carriages to convert direct-fire into high-angle fire guns.

PANAMA LATER.

No provision is made for the defence of the Panama Canal. That appropriation will be carried in the Sundry Civil bill.

All materials purchased under the bill must be of American manufacture except when in the judgment of the Secretary of War it is to the manifest interest of the United States to make purchases in limited quantities abroad.

The bill also contains a provision that the government shall not pay more than 53 cents a pound for powder except for small arms ammunition. Purchase from private manufacturers is also limited by a provision that the prices paid shall not be in excess of 25 per cent. more than the actual or estimated cost of manufacture by the government.

MASKED BANDITS GO THROUGH TRAIN

Muskogee, Okla., April 6.—Posses today were seeking the two masked bandits who late last night held up a Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific train, and escaped after relieving passengers of money and jewelry. It is believed they secured valuables worth several hundred dollars.

New York Beauty Sues for Divorce in London Courts

London, April 6.—The first step toward a divorce has been taken here by Mrs. Wilfred L. Isaacs of Washington and New York. She obtained a decree against her husband, Wilfred Leon Isaacs, for the restitution of her conjugal rights.

Mrs. Isaacs, twenty-seven years old and beautiful, complained to the court that her husband, whom she married in Jersey City in 1911, left her for long periods, so she went to Italy for three months. On her return she asked him to return to her, but, she said, he positively refused. When Mrs. Isaacs brings proof against her husband she will be entitled to a decree of divorce.

The young American woman seeks to lease a house in fashionable Grosvenor square, where she can entertain the smart society of which she is an admired member. One of the parties at the Savoy Hotel last week included the Duchess of Rutland and her daughter, Lady Diana Manners; Lady Cunard, who was Miss Maud Alice Burke of New York; Lady Drogheda, Lady Portarlington and Miss Ethel Levey, the comedienne, who enjoys a great vogue with the fashionable set here.

Woman Accuses Dua, Belgian Tenor, of Insult

By International News Service.

Chicago, April 6.—Through the thick of traffic at Dearborn and Madison streets came Octave Dua, Belgian tenor.

He looked embarrassed, and he was. For a woman was clutching his sleeve, a woman who looked indignant. A traffic policeman came running up.

"This person has insulted me," cried the woman. "I want him arrested."

"I never insulted anybody," protested the man. "I'm a guiltless tenor with the Chicago Grand Opera Company. This is an outrage."

"Caruso's a tenor, too," said the policeman.

"I remember well," replied Dua.

Dua was taken to the Central Station where he gave his residence as the Auditorium Hotel. He was charged with disorderly conduct.

The woman gave her name as Mrs. Ethel Deegan. She accused Dua of having pressed too closely against her at a moving picture show.

The tenor, on the other hand, averred that it was she who had done the pressing.

Dua was locked in a cell. Subsequently he was released on cash bail, furnished by the Belgian consul.

KEPT BILL IN POCKET 2 WEEKS

How Representative Tolman of Gloucester carried in his pocket for two weeks a bill to abolish the assignment of wages for small loans and was finally made to surrender the bill just before the time for filing it expired became known at the State House today.

His action, it is charged by some, may have been part of a scheme to defeat the great fight now being made to curtail the alleged abuses of the small loans system.

The Committee on Legal Affairs voted to report the bill and had intrusted the measure to Tolman's care. The time for filing the bill in the House expired at 5 o'clock last night. Shortly before that time members of the committee ascertained that the bill had not been filed. They held a hurried meeting.

Tolman, according to the reports, declared to them that he had a right to file the bill at his own convenience.

When asked if he would report it, Tolman is said to have flatly refused.

Senator Hays of Brighton took the bill, rushed it over to the Senate and filed it just before the time expired. According to the parliamentarians, if the bill had been delayed it would have automatically gone over to another year.

Members of the committee are fearful that they were made the dupes of a scheme to fix the matter in the Senate, where good legislation oftentimes goes to a sudden and unexpected death.

The bill itself, some assert, is merely a plan to check all legislation to correct the small loans system. Organized labor doesn't want the total abolition of assignments. They want a modified system. They are said to feel that the Republican majority on the Legal Affairs Committee reported out a drastic measure in order to secure its defeat.

During the hurried meeting late yesterday Representative Murray of Milford, a Democrat, moved to substitute the Bowen's bill, which would limit the interest charges on small loans to three per cent a month and would abolish the extortionate paper charges. He was defeated six to four. The Democrats voted with him.

NURSE KILLED BY SENTRY'S BULLET

[illegible], N. H., April 6.—A bullet fired by a sentry at a military camp here killed Mrs. George Cook, a nurse, as she stood at the bedside of a patient, according to the finding at an inquest.

The jury, which heard evidence to the effect that the sentry aimed at a man who was prowling near the camp, decided that the sentry acted in the discharge of his duty, and could not be held criminally responsible.

The bullet passed through the wall of the house and lodged in the nurse's head.

CONVICTED OF ATTACK ON GIRLS

Three years at Deer Island was the penalty given William H. Shea, forty-three years, of Old Harbor street, South Boston, today, for alleged attack upon three little girls between the ages of four and eight. Shea was arrested Monday by Officer Cratty of Station 12, who was attracted to Dorchester Heights by the screams of the children. Shea pleaded not guilty and will have until Monday in which to appeal.

BIG INCREASE IN ACCIDENTS SHOWN

The increase in the amount of business from July 1, 1915, to March 31, 1916, has resulted in a large increase in the number of accidents, according to statistics issued by the State Industrial Accident Board today. During the nine months there has been an increase over the corresponding period for the previous year of 42 per cent.

FOUND HEALTH IN HERBAL MEDICINE

Well Known Everett Business Man Says Plant Juice Has Put Him on His Feet.

"The medical fraternity as a rule recognize that 75 per cent. of the dwellers of the present day find life a burden and have little real happiness," stated the Plant Juice Man, who has his headquarters at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Company's store. Continuing, he said: "And that 90 per cent. of the nervous debility is caused from stomach trouble. The bustle and worry incident to city life is a strain that tells on the average man and woman, bringing with it nervous debility that in time becomes chronic. Tired, worn-out, half-sick men and women are numerous in all large cities. They have uncertain appetites, poor digestion and little ambition. They suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, costiveness, timidity, have no initiative and not enough good, rich blood in their veins to make them capable or self-reliant. Their nervous state is such that they imagine themselves afflicted with various diseases at different times when, in fact, their whole trouble is nothing but the symptoms from a deranged stomach, produced by the life they lead."

Daily local people are coming forward with signed statements relative to the benefit they have received from Plant Juice in cases of stomach, liver and kidney trouble.

Recently the signed testimonial was received from Mr. I. M. Cobb, who lives at No. 76 Norwood Avenue, Everett, and has one of the largest merchant tailoring establishments in the city, at No. 25 Bromfield Street. He stated:

"For the past five years I have suffered with stomach trouble and could not digest my food, and it would ferment in my stomach and cause gas to form there. I suffered misery after eating and felt weak and miserable. I could not sleep, I was so nervous; had headaches and dizzy spells. I was completely run down and nothing seemed to help me. Finally I heard of Plant Juice and started to take it. It certainly proved to be fine in my case, for it toned my stomach right up, and I can eat anything and digest it. I sleep well and have no more aches and pains. I am glad to recommend Plant Juice, for it is a fine medicine. My wife is taking it with the best results, and my grandmother, who is 89 years old, is taking it also and is delighted with it."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Co.'s store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixture at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

Girl Hurt as Coasting Auto Jumps Curbing

Miss Florence A. King of No. 12 Davis street, North Cambridge, was injured and several other persons were put in danger when the brakes failed to hold an automobile which was going up Albion street hill, Somerville, and the big car, with three passengers, coasted to the bottom, jumped the curbing and crashed into a stone-wall.

Albion street crosses Highland avenue at a busy section of that street. As the car flew backwards across this street, it narrowly escaped striking a street car. Many pedestrians on Highland avenue, warned by the shouts of the men in the oncoming automobile, scattering from its path.

Miss King was going up Albion street when the car bore down upon her. She was struck as it jumped the curbing. She suffered a sprained ankle. After being treated at the Somerville Hospital, she was taken to her home.

The car was owned and driven by Walter H. Moore, of No. 88 Albion street. With him in it at the time were H. L. Whitcomb and Joseph Bellincourt, of Somerville, and H. L. Dewhurst of Cambridge. None of these was seriously injured, although all suffered from their shaking up.

HAIR GRAY? THEN APPLY Q-BAN

It Darkens Gray Hair Evenly—No Dye—Harmless.

Actually does—so you can see it with your own eyes—turn every gray hair in your head beautifully dark. If your hair is gray, streaked with gray, prematurely or just turning gray, or if your hair is dry, harsh, thin or falling, simply shampoo hair and scalp a few times with Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer. Every strand of hair (whether gray or not) then becomes evenly dark, soft, glossy, fluffy, full of life and health, full and heavy and fascinating, and so beautifully and evenly darkened no one could suspect you had applied Q-Ban. It is absolutely harmless and no dye. Ready to use, nothing to be added. Give it a trial. 50c for a big bottle at Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores, Boston, Chelsea and Cambridge, Mass. Out-of-town folks supplied by mail.—Advertisement.

GIBSON MURDER CASE NEARS THE JURY

Woodstock, Vt., April 6.—The case of Charles Leighton, charged with the murder of Albert Gibson of Sharon was expected to be given to the jury before evening.

The arguments were concluded yesterday, with Judge E. H. Edgerton of Rochester on the bench as one of the assistant judges.

Gibson was shot in February during an altercation over the cutting of timber on land, the title of which was in dispute. The government charges that the shooting was done maliciously by Leighton, who maintained that it was an accident.

For the defence one of the most important witnesses was Loren Pierce of Woodstock, an expert on firearms, who explained the tendency of the muzzle of a rifle to fly up when fired if loosely held, as was the contention of Leighton.

For the prosecution Fred Spaulding, one of the teamsters in the employ of Gibson, testified that he had heard no warning to his employer to leave the premises.

'L' CARMEN AND OFFICIALS IN CONFERENCE

Sixteen members of the executive board of the Carmen's Union, headed by their chairman, John H. Reardon, today conferred with officials of the Boston Elevated road at the company's office on Milk street on the proposed changes in the working conditions of the men, which, it is claimed, will go into effect May 1. A similar hearing was held yesterday.

Today's hearing lasted most of the morning and most of the afternoon. The utmost secrecy prevailed as to the definite matters discussed.

Among features of the union's demands under the new changes submitted for consideration are:

That conductors, motormen and other employes receive two weeks' vacation with pay annually.

A nine-in-eleven-hour day.

Forty cents an hour for platform work.

Time and a half for overtime.

Sixty cents an hour for men who work on snowplows.

A rumor was current among the carmen that President William D. Mahon of the international body was to come to Boston today, but local union officials said the matter was in the hands of Chairman Reardon.

P. J. O'Brien, international vice-president, was in conference today with James H. Vahey, counsel for the carmen, and will remain here until the trouble with the Bay State Street Railway Company over the discharge of Conductor Martin is cleared up. The men of the Woburn division who went out on strike in sympathy with Martin returned to work today.

ASK INCREASE AT FALL RIVER MILLS

WATCHDOG FIRES STORE AND DIES OF BURNS

A watchdog overturned an oil heater and started a bad fire in the grocery store of James B. Bowmer on Highland avenue, Needham Heights, causing a damage, estimated by firemen, of $2,000 to building and stock.

Mr. Bowmer had closed his store and was attending the funeral services of a relative at the time.

The crew of Combination 2 got into the building and rescued the dog, but he later died from his burns.

Abel Howe Dies at Marlboro.

Marlboro, April 6.—Abel Howe, aged eighty-four, for more than forty years a shoe manufacturer of this city, died at the City Hospital following an operation. He was a native of Marlboro, and the last of a family of eleven

FIRST straw hat of season, snapped on head of its daring owner on Summer street.

Did you see him and it?

"Him" was a young man on Summer street, with a rugged cast of countenance, indicating a mind of his own.

"It" was a straw hat, worn by the young man with the rugged map. It was a split straw white hat, with a black band. It was planted on the head jauntily as though the owner were saying: "Well, what of it? It's paid for."

They—the young man and the straw hat—came up Summer street and into the shopping district. A few minutes later they were noticed going back down Summer street. Maybe the young man was going home to change his hat. But he didn't look like that kind of a chap.

Summer street was filled with persons and many noticed the straw lid. Some smiled. Others rudely laughed—after the young man had passed by.

Life is simply one thing after another in Boston. Tuesday it snowed. Now comes the first straw hat.

Heat prostrations next.

ALBANY BRIDE'S "SUICIDE" A MYSTERY

Albany, N. Y., April 6.—The mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Alice Le Clair Page has developed another curious twist. Thomas Dewey, father of the beautiful secret wife of Charles M. Page, has experienced a change of attitude. At first he demanded a searching investigation into the circumstances of his daughter's death. Later he admitted he was perfectly willing that the matter be dropped.

The metamorphosis was complete. It came shortly after the arrival of the New York newspapers in the form of a message from Page. It read:

"Wait until you see me. I will come to see you Friday. Wait until then."

Although the Page case, as it had come to be known, is discussed all over the city, not one newspaper in Albany has printed anything about it other than a short account of the woman's "suicide" on the morning of her death.

The amazing display of inactivity on the part of all local officials concerned remains unexplained. It was intimated that if District Attorney Alexander and Coroner Hastings do not act upon the evidence placed before them, the entire case will be laid before Governor Whitman.

Mrs. C. B. Page, eighty-seven-year-old mother of Page, told an AMERICAN reporter that her son's fears that she would disinherit him if the "secret marriage" was disclosed were unfounded.

O'MEARA WOULD LEGALIZE TAG DAYS

Police Commissioner O'Meara has issued a statement in which he suggests that a statute be passed legalizing tag days, provided they are sanctioned by the Overseers of the Poor.

He made this statement following his general order in which he announced that in future no persons would be allowed to sell tags or other articles in Boston without being licensed as hawkers or peddlers, in which case they would be obliged to comply with the rules of the Police Commissioner.

O'Meara's general order caused considerable interest, as a tag day, backed by Mayor Curley, had been planned for Saturday. The proceeds were to be given to the Belgian Relief fund.

$1,500,000 IN JEWELS SAVED DURING FIRE

New York, April 6.—Fire swept the top three floors of the six-story loft and studio building at No. 630 Fifth avenue, opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral. The first floor is occupied by the jewelry firm of E. M. Gattle & Co. Diamonds and other precious stones worth $1,500,000 were saved. The studio of Sclarrina Carraino Pietro, sculptor, was destroyed with valuable works of art.

Mr. B.—"You mean there's something wicked about them."

"Now B., you quit."

"But really you do have wonderful lamps—that's why I fell for you. No fooling, though, those lamps—not your eyes this time—certainly are giving the cleanest, clearest, softest light lately. New burner or what?"

"Neither. It's the SOCONY."

"The what 'ny?"

"The SOCONY—that's the kerosene we use now. SOCONY means "Standard Oil Company of New York." SOCONY Kerosene is as different from ordinary kerosene as milk is from limewater. Every woman in the neighborhood insists on SOCONY—we've forgotten the word kerosene."

"Where do you get it?"

"At Rand's grocery. You'll see the SOCONY Kerosene Sign there on the door."

"I'd have known it. He's a live wire anyway."

MISS GARMONG'S LOVE SUIT ON TRIAL

discuss the case with outsiders, nor read newspaper accounts.

Attorney John B. Merrill of Bangor, of counsel for the plaintiff, began his opening to the jury at 2 o'clock.

Miss Garmong, with her five-year-old daughter Mary, was again in court, listening attentively to Attorney Merrill. Henderson was absent.

It was the first appearance in court of the little girl, and all eyes in the room were fastened on mother and daughter. Both seemed unconscious of the attention which they were attracting, the child sitting quietly by her mother's side, apparently much interested in the proceedings.

The jury, most of whom are Penobscot County farmers, include E. B. Clemons of Lee, E. E. Butters of Prentiss, Bird F. Cole of Etna, Ernest L. Patten of Hampden, Reuben N. Bryer of Brewer, George W. Ripley of Mill, R. L. Noble of Garland, Harry W. Kneeland of Lincoln, Charles L. Richardson of Glenburn, J. Mellen Taylor of Hermon, John McAvey of Charleston, Edmund Penney of Clifton.

The case was first tried in 1914, when when a verdict of $116,000 was returned to Miss Garmong, the largest verdict ever returned in Maine in an action of this kind.

An appeal was thereupon entered, the case considered by the Maine Law Court, the verdict set aside and a new trial ordered. The Law Court ruled that the verdict was contrary to the evidence.

The presiding justice at the first trial was Judge Arno W. King. At this term the case will be heard by Judge George E. Bird.

The counsel is the same as in the first trial. L. B. Deasey of Bar Harbor and Oscar F. Fellows represent the defence. Creed M. Fulton of Washington and John B. Merrill of Bangor appear for the plaintiff.

The first trial took four days. It developed much contradictory testimony and the case hinged, according to the charge of the court, upon the question whether there was a contract by the defendant to marry the plaintiff, and also if there was such contract, whether the defendant was bound to carry it out.

The admitted facts in the case are, that in 1909, Miss Garmong, then a nurse, met Henderson at a club near Washington, where she was a guest. This acquaintanceship ripened into friendship.

Several weeks later Henderson went to Bar Harbor and later Miss Garmong went there also. She says he invited her. He says he did not.

However, it is admitted that at Bar Harbor they took walks, rides and motor-boat trips together.

Pretty Women in Auto Carry Vote Plea West

By International News Service.

New York, April 6.—A low racing automobile, painted yellow, draped with orange colored ribbons and occupied by two of the prettiest suffragists that ever demanded the ballot, left New York today for San Francisco to carry arguments for the "Cause" across the continent.

Mrs. Alice Burke of New York will drive the car. Her companion is Miss Nell Richardson of Winchester, Va. The "Golden Flyer," as the car was christened by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, was escorted part of the way by a procession of automobiles bearing suffragists who cheered, waved banners and threw kisses at the departing campaigners.

Mrs. Burke and her companion expect to make speeches for suffrage in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, New Orleans, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Detroit.

SPRING-RICE DENIES AFFRONT TO WOMAN

By International News Service.

Washington, April 6.—Ambassador Spring-Rice of Great Britain today filed with the State Department a memorandum that there was no truth in statements made by Representative McLemore, in the House recently, that an American woman had been stripped of her clothing by British men who were searching her in London as a spy.

'WAKE AMERICA' PRIZE OFFER POPULAR

will be paid for the best verse, or set of verses, expressing the spirit of this song.

Address all communications to the New York American Theatrical Department, room 1802, Candler Building, 220 West Forty-second street, New York city.

Nearly a thousand ambitious song writers in various parts of the United States have thus far accepted the suggestion of the Hearst newspapers that they try to write additional verses for the big national song success, "Wake Up, America." George Graff and Jack Glogau, the authors of the patriotic song which is doing so much to wake the country up to the needs of the nation, have been almost buried under the avalanche of verses that have been submitted. The best additional verse submitted is to be added to the original song and $25 will be given to the author.

Graff and Glogau said yesterday that they were still finding that the amateurs were writing to poetic metre instead of trying to fit their lines to the actual music, and they strongly advise that everybody who writes verses for "Wake Up, America," have them tried out while the music is being played before submitting them.

TRY VERSES WITH MUSIC.

In his report yesterday on the situation Graff said:

"In going over some more of the lyrical effusions for 'Wake up, America,' we have noticed one peculiar and very interesting thing. The names of the writers of the extra verses would indicate that they come from all nationalities. There are names that are distinctly French and Russian; some handwriting that would almost prove that they were written by one who learned to write first in these languages, and the same with the other nationalities. Apparently some of our most loyal Americans are foreign-born Americans.

"Much as we regret the necessity for turning down lyrics that are written perfectly because they do not fit the music of the song 'Wake Up, America,' according to the conditions of this prize contest we must do so. It would be a simple matter to change many of these so that they fit the song as extra verses, and in this way several good verses could be obtained. May we ask you to suggest to those of your readers who have already sent in verses that do not fit the music and which they consider good, to change them so that they can be sung to the music of 'Wake Up, America'?"

TWO CONTRIBUTIONS.

The best verses fitting the music are by W. W. Reid, Whitestone, L. I., and one of the most interesting and best is written by Evan Howard, No. 316 West Twentieth street, New York. Curiously enough, this is probably the best set of verses so far submitted. True, the grammar is very original, but it shows that the author has a natural gift of writing, which apparently has not been cultivated.

These verses are as follows:

Mankind is watching, America,
Hope of the millions oppressed,
Eagerly trusting democracy
Will withstand each fiery test.
Would we be hewers, America,
Of the free path all must trail?
And would we befriend every people?
And list to the world's tragic tale?
If so then we must buckle on armor
And be ready to champion the cause;
We must shield and protect our blest
From tyrrany's ravenous claws.
Whitestone, L. I. W. W. REID.

IS SAM ASLEEP?

Uncle, look! your musket's rusty
And your sword is broke in two!
While you sleep your foes grow lusty;
Pretty soon they'll wallop you!

Did our foresires make a nation
Sitting down and talking peace?
Every man was at his station,
Rifle clean and smoothed with grease.

What they fought for, died to give us
We must ever keep from shame;
Fight and die, too, if the need be,
For our country's glorious name.

Don't be stingy with the dollar,
Don't be stingy with the men;
Don't say: "There's time to start that holler
When I'm hurt, and not 'till then."

If one can't make folks respect it,
Peace is but an empty sham;
We've got freedom, we'll protect it,
Or it isn't worth a damn.

Every human isn't honest,
Every nation is not true;
When the rights we claim are trampled,
Fight's the only thing to do.
EVAN HOWARD,
No. 316 West Twentieth Street.

Anybody can get the $25 that is offered. There are no conditions to be met. The only point is that the best verse that fits the music will be accepted and the writer will get the prize. The judges are Graff and Glogau themselves and they will be mighty well pleased to have someone write a verse as good as their own.

The last day set for receiving verses is April 15. After that Glogau and Graff will make the award. Can you write a song?

THE ORIGINAL VERSE.

The original first verse and chorus as written by Graff and Glogau are as follows:

Have you forgotten, America,
The battles our fathers fought?
Are we ashamed of our history
In the peace that fighting brought?
Must we be laughed at, America,
While our swords turn weak with rust?
Is the blood of our fathers wasted?
How have we treated their trust?
Is Columbia the Gem of the Ocean?
Is Old Glory the pride of the free?
Let's forget every selfish emotion—
United forever we'll be.

CHORUS.

Wake up, America!
If we are called to war
Are we prepared to give our lives
For our sweethearts and our wives?
Are our mothers and our homes worth fighting for?
Let us pray God for peace, but peace with honor;
But let's get ready to answer duty's call;
So when Old Glory stands unfurled,
Let it mean to all the world—
America is ready, that's all.

MISS ARTHUR IN SHAKESPEARE OBSERVANCE

An outdoor performance of "As You Like It" on Boston Common, and the impersonation of about a thousand of Shakespeare's characters were among the suggestions advanced when the committee in charge of the Tercentennial observances of Shakespeare's death met with Mayor Curley in City Hall today.

Previous to the meet of the Mayor the sub-committee met in the office of the City Planning Board. This committee includes Professor Charlton Black, chairman; John J. Walsh, secretary, and Felix Vorenberg, George W. Stewart, Alexander W. Longfellow, John Craig, William F. Kenney, Mrs. Maud Wood Park and John B. Schoeffel.

The Mayor announced that Julia Arthur has consented to take a principal part in the observances. Robert Mantell and Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson declined invitations to take part, owing to theatrical engagements which could not be broken.

The following tentative program was adopted for the observances in the Boston Opera House Easter Sunday, April 23.

1—Overture.
2—Address by Mayor Curley.
3—Address by Governor McCall.
4—To be filled.
5—Oration by Dr. James J. Walsh of New York.
6—Chorus of sixty girls from New England Conservatory of Music in "Who Is Sylvia?" from "Two Gentlemen of Verona."
7—Intermezzo from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."
8—Julia Arthur.
9—To be filled.

GERALDINE FARRAR SCORES BRILLIANT TRIUMPH AS "CARMEN"

By FRED J. McISAAC.

GERALDINE FARRAR, whose appearance on Monday night in the patriotic tableau which began the season was unofficial, made her first operatic entrance yesterday afternoon in "Carmen."

The Opera House saw again a capacity audience, which demonstrates pretty thoroughly that the singer's excursion into the movies and the liberties she took with "Carmen" upon the film have not affected her operatic drawing powers.

"Carmen," greatest of the French operas, had been out of the repertory of the Metropolitan Opera House for a number of years when it was revived for Farrar last season.

During the period when it was being performed eight times a season in Boston with Gay, Calve, Sylva and other singers in the title role New York knew it not.

Whatever can be said of Farrar's interpretation of the most difficult part in opera, she has restored it to the proper place in the Metropolitan repertory.

BOSTON GIRL SINGS ROLE OF MICHAELA.

Miss Farrar was not the only interesting feature of the performance yesterday afternoon. Michaela, favorite part of Sembrich and all lyric sopranos, was sung by Edith Mason, a Boston girl who, as Edith Barnes, sang small parts in the Boston Opera Company. Amato as the heroic toreador and Martinelli as the amorous Don Jose were in the cast.

Bizet's "Carmen" was first produced in 1875, the year of the young composer's death. The libretto is founded upon Merimee's famous novel, and the role of the enchanting gypsy has appealed to all opera singers. Calve was so fitted in face, figure and voice for the part that she made it her own, and when she left the Metropolitan, Carmen left the repertory. Several seasons ago Calve, grown so fat that she could no longer suggest the part histrionically, appeared with the Boston Opera Company as Carmen and demonstrated that she could still sing the glorious music better than anybody else.

FARRAR CARMEN IS SEDUCTIVE.

Geraldine Farrar's career has been the most sensational in grand opera. Gifted with beauty and intelligence, and an agreeable voice of a light dramatic soprano quality, she made Butterfly and Tosca her property. Finally she persuaded the Metropolitan management to let her essay Carmen, and her extraordinary personality enabled her to add this part to her possessions.

There has never been a woman whose Carmen, from a purely physical viewpoint, was so close to the idea of the librettist. We are not concerned here with Merimee's Carmen any more than we are with that of Lasky and Farrar's movie version. She is fascinating, seductive and sensuous. Don Jose, Morales and Escamillo would be bowled over like ninepins.

In the first act she injected such vigor into the fight scene with a sister cigarette maker that it was almost too realistic. At Pasta's resort of smugglers she continued her allures. Her dance with castanets was graceful and charming. In the third and fourth acts she carried power and tragedy.

MARTINELLI IS A FINE DON JOSE.

There are Farrarisms which might be questioned, bits of business which are unconventional and not in keeping with the traditions of the part, but they do not detract from the striking character of her impressions.

It is as a singer that Miss Farrar must be criticised. Much of the music is out of her voice. She succeeds admirably at times in producing the deep, mellow tones we associate with Carmen, and then again she doesn't. In the card scene of the third act she was not impressive because she could not sing the music. Her voice isn't heavy enough and when she forces it, as she is compelled to do much of the time, it isn't lovely.

There was some glorious singing yesterday afternoon, nevertheless. Martinelli was the finest Don Jose heard in Boston in many a day. Such elegance of expression and such superb tones are rarely heard on the opera stage from a tenor. He is a manly and attractive looking young fellow and a forceful and vigorous actor.

MISS MASON SINGS MOST DELIGHTFULLY.

Edith Mason's Michaela is also a thing of delight. Hers is one of the most exquisite lyric sopranos that has ever sung the part of the timid and helpless sweetheart of the dashing Don Jose. And she sings with fine intelligence.

Amato was a disappointment as Escamillo. It seems as though the celebrated baritone is losing his voice, or else he is suffering from a very severe cold. He bellowed the Toreador song, hanging onto the top notes and displaying no low tones at all.

Lenora Sparks and Sophie Braslau were the two gentle smugglers, while Leonhardt and Bada were their male companions. The famous quintet did not go as well as it might despite the good qualities of these individuals. The card scene was also flat.

Polacco conducted a very spirited performance and the chorus and orchestra were absolutely to be depended upon.

MRS. C. H. WASHBURN will have a more complete account of society at the opera in next Sunday's AMERICAN. Mrs. Washburn's column is authoritative and it appears EXCLUSIVELY in the Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

Maria Barrientos, new Spanish prima donna who makes her Boston debut tonight in the title role of "Lucia."

First of the German Operas Sung

THE FIRST OF THE GERMAN repertory of the Metropolitan to be given here was "Tristan und Isolde," Wagner's never-dying tone poem of life and death.

Although Boston did not turn out in the same force as for Caruso, there was a very big attendance.

The cast last night included Melanie Kurt, a dramatic soprano of great reputation who had never been heard in Boston, and Jacques Urlus, the Dutch tenor, whose American debut was made in this opera house during Henry Russell's days in the same role of Tristan.

Louise Homer was the Brangaene and Herman Weil was Kurwenall. Bodanzky, the new German conductor, made his first appearance.

GRAND MUSIC IN "TRISTAN UND ISOLDE."

"Tristan und Isolde" is really a symphony with voices, scenery and some (very little) action. It contains some of the grandest music conceived by mortal man and long stretches of dryness.

Cutting Tristan is getting to be a habit. There were some cuts last night. Weingartner did not hesitate to cut the third act. Bodanzky had a hard task to follow Weingartner and Toscanini in the Boston Opera House, but he acquitted himself very well. He is not a virtuoso conductor like those two geniuses, but he gets his effects and his climaxes very acceptably.

LOUISE HOMER SINGS SUPERBLY.

Kurt is a stunning Isolde, with a rich and beautiful voice, which she uses in the conventional German fashion. In person she is very ample, like so many other women who have sung Isolde.

Urlus is by far the best of the German tenors, a sturdy virile singer and a good actor. Carl Braun gave distinction to the part of King Mark with his big, rich bass.

Louise Homer is always a superb Brangaene. Weil made an acceptable Kurwanal.

SOCIETY AT THE OPERA

By MRS. C. H. WASHBURN.

MRS. J. MONTGOMERY SEARS entertained a party in her box at the opera last night, her guests including her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cameron Bradley, and Miss Alison Haughton. Osborne, Miss Eleanor Quincy and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic L. W. Richardson were others there.

ROOSEVELT BID MEANS QUICK LINEUP

By International News Service.

Washington, April 6.—Colonel Roosevelt's open bid for the Republican [illegible] of the country [illegible] as that party's candidate in the coming national campaign will result in an immediate lineup within and without the party. It will crystallize the opposition, Democratic and Republican alike, and will result in an early lineup of the delegates to the coming Chicago convention.

The pronouncement of the Colonel was the chief topic of discussion in political circles today. The White House declined to make any public comment on it, but it is understood that the President will make a move to answer some of the issues raised by Colonel Roosevelt in the speech he will deliver at the dinner of the [illegible] Council Club here on April 13.

This dinner will bring together more than a majority of the members of the Democratic National committee and many Democratic State chairmen. The President is to deliver the principal speech at the dinner and addresses also will be made by Senators Walsh of Montana and Hollis of New Hampshire and Representative [illegible] of Virginia.

STEAMER COMES THROUGH LONG SEA BATTLE

The Norwegian steamer Britta, long overdue, came in today from Huelva, Spain, with a cargo of iron pyrites and bringing a tale of terrible battling with the sea during the thirty-one days of the voyage.

When a few days out of port, a hurricane struck the ship, and for [illegible] days she was its plaything. Huge seas swept the deck, were [illegible] and cabins were ripped [illegible]. The [illegible] were smashed [illegible] was flooded, so that the crew had to sleep on the engine-room gratings.

A week later another storm battered the Britta and her crank shaft couplings were smashed. She tumbled in the sea while the engine room crew made hurried repairs, fought out the storm, and then the crankshaft went to bits again in the next blow.

The Britta finally made Bermuda, repaired and took on coal. Her trip from Bermuda to Boston was mild and peaceful, and the captain got his first real sleep of the voyage.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! 25-CENT BOTTLE STOPS DANDRUFF

Every bit of dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Try this. Your hair appears glossy, abundant, wavy and beautiful.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.—Advertisement.

BROWN MICE PAY HONOR TO BARON MUNCHAUSEN TONIGHT

Today is the 180th anniversary of the birth of Baron Munchausen, who ran a close second to Ananias for the heavyweight lying belt.

It is admitted that some of our best meaning Bostonians may celebrate the day unconsciously.

One organization plans to observe the anniversary with malice aforethought, so to speak.

That is The Brown Mice, a group of literary aspirants, with headquarters at the Boston Young Men's Christian Union at No. 48 Boylston street. They will hold a celebration meeting this evening at the B. Y. M. C. U. with an appropriate Munchausen program.

The organization name "Brown Mice" is based upon the tale of the old German professor who mated a Japanese white mouse with a common mouse with the result that once in every generation a brown mouse appeared. This brown mouse was the exceptional one—the genius, so to speak. Thus the organization encourages in its very name the budding genius in its membership.

Baron Munchausen was a great story teller—in more senses than one—so the Brown Mice deem his birth anniversary a fitting occasion for observance.

A modest notice which the committee of arrangements sent out, bidding anyone interested to attend, caused some jocose comment at the B. Y. M. C. U. upon the nature of the anniversary.

The committee consists of Miss Annie E. E. Simmons, chairman; Alfred C. Dalmas and Donald B. Cook.

The program for tonight's entertainment, arranged by James O. Fagan, will include some original Munchausen tales by Nathan Haskell Dole, the author-editor; readings by the elocution class and moving pictures of "Colonel Heeza Liar."

If you feel interested you may obtain a free ticket at the B. Y. M. C. U. office.

MISS ANNIE E. E. SIMMONS, chairman of committee for celebration of the birthday of Baron Munchausen.

As False Teeth Didn't Fit, Thief Sends Them Back

New Haven, April 6.—On last Monday night a Chapel-street dentist's showcase was robbed of some gold fillings and $100 worth of false teeth. The dentist complained to the police, but no clew to the burglar was unearthed.

The false teeth were returned to the dentist by parcel post. A note in the package stated that the teeth did not fit. The burglar, however, kept the rubber-gum plate and some sample gold fillings.

The teeth were of the best workmanship and could have been sold, so the police believe the burglar was looking for a set for himself.

DALLINGER TO DROP POSTAL CAMPAIGN

Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger has announced that he will not further press the campaign to separate the Cambridge postoffice from the Boston postal district. He said that he had not in any way changed his mind on the merits of the proposition, but that he believed it inexpedient to force the issue "at a time when the powers that be are evidently determined to throw every obstacle in the way of the success of a remedy that has worked so successfully elsewhere."

Congressman Dallinger's letter, addressed to Gilbert A. A. Pevey, chairman of the special postoffice committee of the Cambridge Board of Trade, is in part as follows:

"Dear Mr. Pevey:

"As you well know for many years there has been much complaint from the residents and business men of Cambridge in regard to our postal service. A number of different committees have investigated the matter, and it has been found impossible to get any adequate relief from the postmaster of Boston, who has eighty substations under his supervision and finds it difficult, if not impossible, to secure enough carriers to keep up with the increase of population.

"After a careful investigation of the subject in all its phases I became convinced that the fault was not due to the clerks and carriers employed in our four sub-stations, but to the fact that these sub-stations are treated as simply four of a large number of residential stations and that Cambridge is not treated as a whole by someone whose sole business it is to see to it that the different parts of the city are given the postal facilities that they require.

"The remedy suggested by my predecessor was the erection of a large building in Cambridge at an expense to the Federal government of $300,000, a bill for which he introduced in the first session of the Sixty-third Congress. Failing to see how this would remedy the situation in the slightest degree, and believing that it is the duty of a Representative in Congress not only to do what he is asked to do, but to propose remedies for existing evils, I continued my investigations further, and found that the only other large manufacturing city in the metropolitan district, namely, Lynn, had been recently consolidated with the Boston postal district, but that, after six months' experience, with practical unanimity, it demanded to be restored to its independent status.

"This was done at the instance of Congressman Phelan with the approval of Mr. Murray, then a member of Congress.

FOUND CHANGE DESIRED.

"Wherever I spoke in Cambridge I advocated the change, and everywhere the proposition met with enthusiastic approval.

"I expected when I came to Washington that it would take at least a number of years to secure the passage of my separate bill. After talking the matter over, however, with members of the postoffice committee, I decided to offer my bill as an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill.

"Fortunately, I was able to convince the House that my amendment was a reasonable one, and it was unanimously adopted.

"The fact that I asked for no appropriation for any public building, and the further fact that I offered my amendment under a Democratic administration was conclusive proof that I was neither after 'pork' nor desirous of patronage, but was actuated solely by a desire to improve existing conditions.

"Some little time after the passage of the postoffice appropriation bill by the House, one of the Democratic Congressmen from Boston told me that he understood that Postmaster Murray feared that his salary might be reduced if the proposed change went through. Immediately afterwards I heard that the postal clerks and letter carriers of Cambridge had held a meeting which was addressed by Mr. Murray's assistant, and that they, under the misapprehension that the proposed change would involve a reduction in the number of deliveries and a corresponding reduction in the number of clerks and carriers, accompanied by a reduction in their salaries, were telling people on their routes that their service would be impaired rather than benefited.

CHANGE IN SENTIMENT.

"At considerable inconvenience I came on from Washington to attend that meeting believing that I could convince the clerks and carriers, as well as the public to whom they had spoken, that they were wrong in their premises, as the department in Washington assured me that none of the things which they feared would take place and that they had not taken place when Lynn was separated from the Boston postal district.

"I found, however, that I was unable to convince them and that they honestly believed that they, as well as the public, will not be so well off if Cambridge is made a separate postoffice.

"Even if the opposition, based, as I believe, upon a complete misunderstanding of the facts, did not exist, nevertheless the fact that the present postmaster of Boston is evidently determined to oppose the change in the case of Cambridge, although he cooperated to make the separation of Lynn a success, combined with the honest although mistaken belief on the part of the clerks and carriers that they would not be so well off, would make the success of the proposed change exceedingly difficult if not impossible.

"Under all the circumstances, however, while I have not changed my mind in the slightest degree as to the wisdom of the proposed change if inaugurated under favorable conditions, I believe it inexpedient to force the issue at a time when the powers that be are evidently determined to throw every obstacle in the way of the success of a remedy that has worked so successfully elsewhere.

"Regretting that the situation here will not permit the keeping of this matter in abeyance until after the report of your committee and the next meeting of the Board of Trade, I remain,

"Very truly yours,
"FREDERICK W. DALLINGER."

DEFEAT GERMANS IN BATTLE IN AIR

By International News Service.

Rome, April 6.—Fighting between allied troops and the Bulgar-German forces on the Doiran-Gievgeli front on the northern border of Greece is growing more spirited, says the Athens correspondent of the Messagero. Ten German aeroplanes, that had evidently set out to bombard Salonika, were attacked by fourteen allied machines and put to flight. Much German artillery is arriving at Veles in Southern Servia.

POLICE UNCOVER "ROBBERS' ROOST"

During the investigation by the police of what they believe is a gang of organized merchandise looters, the officers discovered what they claim to be the "Robbers' Roost" for teamsters and their helpers who have been engaged in looting merchandise from wagons in the Atlantic avenue district.

The address of the robbers' haven has not been disclosed by the police, but it has been learned that in the cellar of a barroom in the North End district the police recovered several cases of merchandise stolen from wagons.

The police have arrested three men who they allege have taken part in looting the wagons. They are Jeremiah Casey of Sixth street, South Boston, Walter F. Kirwin of East Eighth street, South Boston, and Patrick Donovan of Sidney street.

BLACKHEADS GO QUICK BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of powdered neroxin from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. The powdered neroxin and the hot water have just dissolved them. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them open and unsightly—and unless the blackheads are big and soft they will not come out, while the simple application of neroxin and water dissolves them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. You can get powdered neroxin at any drug store and if you are troubled with these unsightly blemishes you should certainly try this simple method.—Advertisement.

SUBURBAN BABIES LEAD CITY RIVALS IN CUP CONTEST

Where are the Boston babies who live within one, two and three miles of the State House?

Is it a fact that most of the Better Babies live in the suburbs of Boston, rather than in the more thickly settled portions of the city?

The Better Baby Editor knows otherwise. There are perfect babies in the North, West and South Ends. He has seen hundreds of them and would feel grieved to have most of the medals go to babies outside the city.

There are Milk and Baby Hygiene babies—strong, healthy and bright, some of whom have been brought up under modified milk—and they should win their share of the medals. Who knows but one of these carefully supervised babies might be the winner of the first prize silver cup?

As yet a great majority of the entrants to the Better Baby Contest live in Dorchester, Roxbury, Waltham, Wakefield, Woburn, Everett, Revere, Lynn, Medford, Arlington and other outlying towns.

MORE ENTRIES WANTED.

There is plenty of room for all that come from whatever town, so long as it lies within the thirteen-mile limit, but thousands of babies who live right here within a stone's throw of the AMERICAN office should be in the race.

Boston mothers! Here is an opportunity to show the rural babies and their mothers that you know as much as they do about bringing up infants.

If you think your babies are good enough, bright enough and strong enough to enter the contest, ask the Milk and Baby Hygiene nurse in your district, or put it up to the district doctor, or the health unit physician.

If Boston proper has any pride in its babies it will not allow all the prizes to go away from the centre of the city.

SEND LETTERS WITH BLANKS.

We want more babies from South Boston and from East Boston, and there is room for a hundred babies from Charlestown right now.

Conditions for entering are simple anyone can understand and fill out the blank printed each day in the AMERICAN.

Babies must be between the ages of six and twenty months; they must live within thirteen miles of the State House, and their birth date, their weight, height, and circumference of head, chest and abdomen must be given accurately.

Letters accompanying blank, together with a photograph, will be helpful to the judges in making the decision.

The contest is open until midnight, May 6. It will be well, however, to get your baby's measurements in now.

Questions which have come in today written to Dr. Mary T. Moore will be answered as soon as possible.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

One mother has asked for a menu suitable for a baby fourteen months old, and another question is connected with biliousness.

Every mother should be interested in the answers to these questions and should read tomorrow's AMERICAN. It may be, however, that Dr. Moore cannot reply until Friday.

Herewith are locations of various Milk and Baby Hygiene stations where mothers may receive advice not only about the contest, but also concerning questions of hygiene and baby health.

The nurses know what perfect babies should be, and can tell whether a mother might enter the prize contest.

Stations—North End Union, No. 20 Parmenter street; Elizabeth Peabody House, No. 357 Charles street; Denison House, No. 93 Tyler street; South Bay Union, No. 640 Harrison avenue; Roxbury Neighborhood House, No. 858 Albany street, Roxbury; East Boston Old Armory, Maverick and Bremen streets; Charlestown Ward Room, Lexington and Bunker Hill streets; Lincoln House, No. 79 Emerald street; South Boston [illegible] Court House, No. 125 Dorchester street; Roxbury Crossing, No. [illegible] Columbus avenue, Roxbury; Dorchester House, No. 15 Gordon place, Dorchester; Hale Street Station, No. 87 Hale street.

NEW SHELL GRAFT CHARGES IN CANADA

By International News Service.

Ottawa, April 6.—Additional serious charges were made in the House of Commons against the Canadian Shell Committee by E. M. McDonald. He declared that while General Bertram and David Carnegie were in New York a responsible party offered to make fuses and shells at cost of production, plus a 10 per cent.

"They declined to do business with this man," declared Mr. McDonald. "Instead they made a contract with a crowd of speculators who have been trafficking with Canadian money, and, owing to their failure to live up to their contract, with the lives of our men at the front.

"While this matter was under consideration a promoter arrived. He asked the right to add seventy-five cents to the price of each fuse for the purpose of dividing that amount into four parts. One was to be kept by the contractor. He was to have one and the others were to be given to parties unknown. They declined, however, to do business with this man.

"Responsible Canadians offered to make shells at a price less than that at which the Shell Commission gave the contract in the United States."

Canada Gives Watches to Men for Sea Rescue

Captain Lawrence Morris of the fishing schooner Josie and [illegible] received a gold watch today and six members of his crew received a silver watch each from the Canadian government as a reward for heroism in rescuing the crew of the wrecked Canadian schooner Harry on May 28, 1915.

The crew, which took off the Canadians in a heavy sea, were John Kenny, Thomas Powers, Patrick Gibbons, Raime [illegible], Everett [illegible] and George Hubbard.

The watches were forwarded to Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador at Washington, who turned them over to Secretary William Redfield of the Department of Commerce.

The presentations were made by E. H. Grant, local shipping commissioner. Each watch was accompanied by a letter of congratulation from Secretary Redfield.

CARRANZA'S TROOPS ABANDON PURSUIT FOR THE BANDIT VILLA

OVER 500 OF FIRST CHIEF'S SOLDIERS QUIT FIELD AND RETURN TO JUAREZ.

Latest reports from the south indicate that Villa has gained on his American pursuers who are handicapped by the lack of supplies and fresh mounts.

On Wednesday morning the bandit chief, according to Mexican advices, was at Saucillo, one hundred miles southeast of Chihuahua City.

The same reports stated that Villa and his small band of "golden ones" were riding at full speed on picked horses, of which "Pancho" and his bodyguard have not lacked since they reached a district that has long favored the Villista cause. This indicated that Villa had not been wounded as Carranza generals have confidently claimed, or that his injuries at any rate were not severe.

Behind Villa were said to be traveling the jaded horses of two American cavalry troops, probably part of the famous Seventh. The American soldiers were making a hard race of it, but carrying the odds that must attend when a large body of mounted men pursue a handful in such rugged country.

300 MILES FROM BASE.

The pursuit has carried the American soldiers 300 miles as the crow flies from their main base of Columbus, N. M. They are within touch of the Mexican Central Railway, free use of which would permit them to take El Paso as a base and supplies could be shipped direct from here. With Columbus as the base the American supplies are thrown one hundred miles off the direct route.

Every mile that the Americans advance adds to the peril that surrounds them owing to their long, thin line of communications.

The Carranza government recently announced that the United States had agreed to withdraw its troops when Villa's trail was lost, and there were intimations today that the Carranzistas were making broad hints that this time had come.

Army Recruits Are Coming Slowly

By International News Service.

Washington, April 6.—The recruits now being enlisted in the army throughout the country are being sent to the Mexican border to serve with the regulars as fast as they can be equipped with uniforms and guns.

It was announced at the War Department today that the custom of giving all recruits six months' training at barracks before placing them with regulars has been temporarily abandoned.

It was further stated today that in the three weeks since Congress passed an emergency resolution to bring the army up to its full strength that only about 3,000 men have been added to the service.

Officials of the War Department are inclined to be discouraged. They assert that at the present rate it will take them several months to get the 20,000 additional men needed to bring the army up to full strength. A heavy allowance must be made, they said, for enlistments expiring.

President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing planned a conference this afternoon on the Mexican situation. It was understood they were going to discuss the terms of the protocol, which is being arranged with the Carranza government to provide for future emergencies such as the sending of the punitive expedition after Villa.

The War Department was without any advices today concerning the hunt for Villa.

Funston Scouts Withdrawal Rumor

By L. V. B. RUCKER,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

San Antonio, Tex., April 6.—General Funston today expressed the belief that American troops had already reached Satevo, forty-two miles south of Chihuahua City, and that they were still pressing closely upon Francisco Villa.

He thinks that if the race between the bandits and his American pursuers has settled down to an endurance test Villa will surely be captured.

The American commander and his staff at Fort Sam Houston dismissed as unworthy of comment reports that the American troops would be withdrawn from Mexico without accomplishing their purpose.

It was pointed out by other officers that the ordering of more aeroplanes and trucks for the expedition was sufficient contradiction of the withdrawal rumors.

General Funston ridiculed alarming reports that 50 per cent. of the American cavalry had been disabled and that the United States soldiers were suffering severely.

"Naturally, under such conditions and in such a rough country some weaklings think they suffer and some horses give out," he said, "but to say 50 per cent. of the horses are lost and the troopers are not supplied with proper food, uniforms and equipment is ridiculous."

Cancel Sending Troops to Panama

By International News Service.

Washington, April 6.—At the request of Major-General Funston, Secretary of War Baker today cancelled the orders given the first squadron of the Fourth Field Artillery to leave Brownsville, Texas, at once and proceed to Panama. General Funston said it was not wise to weaken the forces along the border at this time.

Runyon Describes the Closing of Net About Villa in Chihuahua

By DAMON RUNYON,
Staff Correspondent of International News Service.

With United States Army Headquarters in the Field, April 3, via Columbus, N. M., April 6.—Shadowy columns of marching men are now slipping along the mountain trails of Chihuahua. The American infantry has hit the hills. Moving mainly by night, the foot soldiers are dragging the net that has been stretched for Villa over places where it would be impossible for horses to go.

Their long barreled rifles are poking into hidden banks far up the deep gorges. Their outposts squat on precarious ledges. Their beds are made among the rocks. They live on bacon and hard tack.

VILLA ON THE MOVE.

The cavalry goes clattering up and down the white roadways of the valley far below, ostentatious, imposing, but the infantry squirms its way through the tangled growth of the hillsides in ominous silence as it beats the brush for the wounded tiger of the North.

Despite the stories as to his condition it is believed that Villa is still on the move. If wounded as badly as reported he must be suffering the tortures of the damned as he limps along somewhere probably just outside, if not actually within, the gradually widening circle of his hunters.

It has been said that he is fleeing in a buggy. It has been said that he clings to one of the splendid chargers he rode when he visited Columbus to his eternal regret. It has been said that he is hiding in the house of sympathizers.

INFANTRY RINGING HIM IN.

No one knows whether there is any truth in any of these tales.

The employment of the infantry in the hunt would seem to indicate to the American soldiers that Pancho is in the hills. Heretofore, the foot soldiers have been used for garrison and guard purposes more than anything else although they were constantly being pushed on south for just the present emergency. They will give the cavalry a chance to rest their horses.

Additional details of the fight at San Geronimo are being received but they add little to the story as it has already been told. That the outlaws escaped annihilation by the merest chance is certain. That they were astounded by the rapidity with which the Americans had moved upon them is equally certain.

THE LAUGH THE OTHER WAY.

"None of the Mexican people seem to understand it," declared a scout today. "They thought the Villistas with a week's jump would surely outrun the Americans and make them a laughing stock, but the way the American cavalry crawled upon them has proven a tremendous surprise."

Of an evening there comes to the office of the International News Service in the lee of "Dutch's" mule wagon a bunch of young men with the bright gold of the artillery service about their peaked hats.

"Say," says one of them, "you're from New York, ain't you? Well, you know Johnny Lore, the fighter? I'm his cousin. If you see Johnny when you get back tell him 'hello' for me, will you? Tell him I'm doing pretty good here, but wish I was back in New York. Oh, you New York!"

"Me, I come from Yorkville," says another. "I wish I was back there. My folks don't know I've re-enlisted in the army; if you meet them, tell 'em, will you?"

"A LOT OF NEW YORKERS."

These are but two of the men who have drifted here through some reason or other, from New York way.

"We've got a lot of fellows from New York who are now in the artillery," said the second man.

"Those lads from the big town come in green to things that are second-nature to country boys, but it does not take the city kids long to learn. They are stoical under hardship and make great soldiers in the field."

The commander of the Carranza forces dined, informally, at the headquarters of the punitive expedition yesterday.

KNEW HE WAS A COLONEL.

He is a colonel in rank. He is about twenty-three years old. His jacket was khaki Norfolk and he wore a wide-brimmed Stetson hat on the back of his head. A couple of stars on the hat told his status in the army of the White Bearded Ruler of Mexico. He came attended by an aide, a much older man, who is a lieutenant.

The Mexican officers were brought to the headquarters in an automobile by the Americans. They had the soap-box seats of honor at the rude table in the headquarters mess under the shedding cottonwood trees hard by the celebrated rolling kitchen that was brought to camp by Mr. Buzzacott, of the ovens.

COLONEL POPULAR, TOO.

There was much conversation at the table. The Mexicans said what they had to say in the language of their country and this was interpreted to the American officers by one of their number who speaks Spanish. The Americans made their responses in pure United Statesese. They seemed quite delighted at the reception and were bowing and murmuring as they re-entered the automobile and sped back to Casas Grandes.

The young colonel's name is Davilo and the Mormons along the valley through which his troop are scattered speak highly of him. They say he has earnestly endeavored to give them every protection and assistance in recouping their shattered estates. He helped them till their ground by teams of horses.

"A very fair young man; a very young man, indeed," said Bishop Call of the Mormon church.

SHUN CASAS GRANDES.

The American soldiers made few visits to Casas Grandes because there is an order against it. When the troops first landed in the Mormon district, some of the Carranzistas were frequently seen in Colonia Dublan, but of late they rarely go there. The relations between the Mexican and American officers are quite friendly, however, as is shown by the dinner of yesterday.

Both Davilo and his aide expressed themselves as pleased over the success of the Americans against Villa. They seemed thoroughly familiar with the details of the fighting at San Geronimo, in which Colonel Erwin and his Seventh cavalrymen killed sixty Villistas.

CAMPFIRE CHURCH SERVICE.

There was a big union church service in the camp last night, the four chaplains with the troops combining their efforts. They are Chaplains Joyce, Lutz, Randolph and Moose, and they had a campfire so big that it lighted the glade in which the headquarters of the expedition is located into the brightness of daytime.

Prior to the service the hospital corps gave a thrilling drill of so strenuous a character that the wonder is most of the participants are not patients in their own tents. The church services were not entirely ecclesiastic in character as between hymns some of the singers would sing such classics as "Where the River Shannon Flows," along with songs of a later vintage.

TRUCK KILLS BOY: DRIVER RELEASED

Thirteen-year-old Gregory Silcawich of No. 20 Salliman street, North End, while riding a bicycle, was killed today at Washington and Hanover streets by a motor truck. The operator of the truck, Bernard Ginsberg, forty-two, of No. [illegible] Chelsea street, East Boston, was detained by the police, but later released when Judge Wentworth refused to issue a warrant for manslaughter. Evidence showed that boy rode past then turned in front of the truck. The boy's neck was broken and skull crushed, and the body was not identified for several hours.

ENGLISH CLASSES FOR FOREIGNERS

Principal John C. [illegible] of the Evening Extension School has arranged for a comprehensive study of the English language and wants non-English speaking persons to take advantage of it by enrolling in the different classes at the Central Evening Elementary School in English High School building, Montgomery street, on Monday evening. The school will be open three nights a week beginning Monday evening and continuing up to and including Thursday evening, June 1. The nights are Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

—not an economy

Wrapping the Loaves The bread is kept dust-proof in its trip from the bakery to you. Even the wrapping is now done by machinery.

The wise housewife finds that the baker relieves her of the burden of making bread and enables her to serve fresh bread daily.

The modern baker is qualified by experience and equipment to turn out a superior loaf at a lower price—and in point of fact he does.

The baker is a thorough master of the science of bread making. He substitutes accurate information and scientific precision for guess-work methods. He adds to scientific precision scientific cleanliness and produces bread under conditions which no home kitchen in the world can attain.

He bakes thousands of loaves a day. Because of his great output he can take elaborate precautions to safeguard the quality and cleanliness and yet give you a loaf lower than the cost of baking at home.

THE NATIONAL MAGAZINE
BOSTON, MASS.
EDITED BY JOE MITCHELL CHAPPLE
13th March, 1916.

Hearst's International Library Co.
119 West 40th Street,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

Among the real treasures of my library is the "King Albert's Book." It is so different from other books, being, as it is, a tribute not only to a man and a king, but to an ideal as well. Within its less than two hundred pages is found an outburst of idealism and sentiment, the like of which I have never before seen.

Bound in appropriate Belgian blue, the book is one that will be taken up again and again, and will, no doubt, in future years, be looked upon as a rose appearing among the thorns of warfare. Perhaps never before in all history has a like tribute been given to a man, and years may pass before the combined genius of these countries shall again respond so heartily; so readily, and so nobly.

Like the Magi in days agone, the world's most notable figures in Art, Literature and Statecraft, have come to pay their tribute to a king who represents not himself alone, but an ideal, and whose bleeding country has been the manger in which was born a new civilization.

Sincerely yours,

Joe Mitchell Chapple

Joe Mitchell Chapple, Noted Author and Editor, Writes:

"King Albert's Book

Contains contributions from the world's most notable figures in Art, Literature and Statecraft. It is among the real treasures of my library."

The wave of sympathy that went out from the world's heart to heroic Albert, King of the Belgians, and his people, when colossal ruthless forces turned peaceful homes into littered ruins, found noble expression in literature's most unique volume—"King Albert's Book."

The idea of producing a book that would remain in the world's literature as an imperishable monument to the fortitude of Belgium and her King belongs to Hall Caine. He enlisted in this undertaking two hundred and fifty of the world's greatest writers and artists.

If these makers of history and of literature had been paid the current value of their work from the publisher, the book's enormous cost would have made its publication impossible. They worked as a labor of love—because

All Profits Go to Relieve Suffering Belgians

The pages of "King Albert's Book" are vivid with the art of such writers as William Dean Howells, Maeterlinck, Kipling, Winston Churchill, Zangwill, Thomas Hardy, Gertrude Atherton: while the works of the artists alone make the volume worth much more than the price—Maxfield Parrish, Christy, Pennell, Flagg, to mention but a few.

Your Bookstore Has

"King Albert's Book"

The edition allotted to the United States is limited. "King Albert's Book" delights the booklover and the collector of rare books. The largest library has no book like it. Time will increase its value.

"King Albert's Book" is the kind of a book usually sold for five dollars when the commercial profits are applied. It has 188 large pages—8½x11 inches, large type with artistic wide margins, many full-page illustrations in color, mounted; and bound in a beautiful gray binding embossed with the royal insignia of its patron, King Albert.

In purchasing "King Albert's Book" you enrich your library and at the same time contribute generously toward a noble philanthropy.

All book stores have "King Albert's Book," or they can order it for you, or you can obtain it direct from Hearst's International Library, 119 West Fortieth street, New York.

LIGHT COMMISSION ATTACKS BOSTON SLIDING GAS SCALE

When the legislative [illegible] on Public Lighting resumes its public hearing Monday on the price of gas in Boston, the State Board [illegible] Gas and Electric Light Commissioners will be prepared to show that nearly $1[illegible]000 paid by the consumers to the Boston Consolidated Gas Company has been passed out in dividends instead of being set aside by the company to take care of the depreciation of its property.

This startling fact was discovered by an expert accountant recently employed by the Commission to investigate the books of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

SHOULD SET ASIDE A SURPLUS.

"Every [illegible] of this money was paid [illegible] by the consumers," declared General Morris Schaff of the State Commission. "It is the moral duty of the company to set aside a surplus to take care of the depreciation of property. But this money was used to declare dividends and the consumers will ultimately be called upon to again pay for the depreciation of that property."

The State Commissioners urge the Legislature to discontinue the 'sliding scale' act under which the price for gas in Boston is regulated, [illegible] the Boston Consolidated Gas Company is divorced from the Massachusetts Gas Companies, the holding corporation which also controls numerous other gas, coal, coke, mining and transportation companies that buy and sell from each other.

The commissioners have found that the officers of [illegible] the corporations are [illegible] identical.

"ALL POOL EARNINGS."

"The earnings [illegible] all are pooled to pay the interest and dividends on the associations securities," the commission declares.

Among the corporations connected with the association are:

Boston Consolidated Gas Company.
East Boston Gas Company.
Quincy Gas Company.
Newton and Watertown Gas Company.
New England Coal and Coke Company.
Boston Towboat Company.
Boston Phoenix Lighting Company.
Chelsea Gas Light Company.
Federal Coal and Coke Company.
J. P. B. Coal Company.
Other transportation companies, and Mining interests in West Virginia.

The Boston Consolidated Gas Company buys [illegible] from the New England Coal and Coke Company. All the companies buy and sell coal, coke, gas, transportation and several by-products of the gas company among themselves.

OTHER CITIES FARE BETTER.

The sliding-scale act provides that every time the price of gas is reduced five cents the company may increase its dividend 1 per cent.

Under this arrangement the price of gas is eighty cents in Boston.

In Worcester and Lynn, where no such arrangement exists, the price of gas is seventy-five cents.

The stock and bonds of the holding association amounts [illegible]

"Most of it is water," declares General Schaff. "Under existing conditions the people of Boston are compelled to pay [illegible] stock [illegible]

ANOTHER FALLACY.

From time immemorial it has been said that horseshoes bring luck. Far be it from us to take exception to a time-honored superstition, but—

If you were wending your merry way to take part in a sociable game of draw poker, and—

If you happened to notice a flock of horseshoes holding down papers on a newsstand, and—

If you said unto yourself, "Aha! I shall purchase a horseshoe and sit in that game and trim them from soup to nuts, from Maine to Mexico, from the rock-bound shores of Oregon to the hide-bound bores of New England, and—

If you made a dicker with the Sicilian youth, exchanging the small sum of a dime, ten cents, a tenth part of a dollah, for a horseshoe, and—

If you sat in the game and were separated from your goods and chattels, including your goat, and—

If you said in your righteous wrath, "This horseshoe must be cast into outer darkness, where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth!" and—

If, while seeking a convenient darkened window, you bumped into the edge of a door with your countenance and disabled your starboard lamp—

Would you still consider the horseshoe a harbinger of good fortune?

We thought so.

WALKER BOUGHT BY SOX

Browns' Slugging Fielder Landed by Lannin—May Mean Speaker Will Figure in Trade.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Manager Carrigan of the Red Sox announced late last night that President Lannin had phoned him from Boston stating he had purchased Clarence Walker's release from the St. Louis Browns and that the crack Western outfielder would report for duty at once.

With Speaker back with the club, though not signed to a contract, the Red Sox, always strong in the outer works, were thought plenty efficient in that department for the coming race.

Buying Walker is taken to mean here that Lannin, tiring of trying to come to terms with Speaker, has a trade as good as closed that will land the noted Texan in some other ball orchard the coming season.

Not counting Speaker, Carrigan has Hooper and Lewis as well as Henriksen and Shorten. The [illegible] is generally considered one of the best young outfielders in baseball.

'Billy' Sunday on Bench Asks for Tris' Pet Bat

By HERMANN NICKERSON.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Brooklyn was the team the World's Champions tackled today and they were reported to be going pretty fast, so the games with the Dodgers should be stiffly contested.

For a game played after two nights and a day on the road from Memphis, the Sox went well in Baltimore. They left the land of the late lamented Federal League, and the home of the boycott on baseball, sleeping here tonight at the Sherman Square. Every man is right now for the championship opening.

"Billy" Sunday, whose meetings are being held on the old Baltimore ball park, [illegible] met the world-beaters yesterday and saw six innings of their [illegible] with Jack Dunn's charges.

The Champions looked pretty good against Orioles. They had plenty of life, and, while they didn't shower their hits, they made plenty of them. Ofcourse, the batting of Dunn's deserted team was not as aggressive as the twirlers will find them when the season opens. Still, the work of Shore and Ruth was most encouraging.

The tall schoolmaster worked five [inn]ings and but one hit was [illegible] That was a double by [illegible] after two men were out [illegible] This was also [illegible] reached [illegible] Shore [illegible] base on balls [illegible] forced at [illegible]

Tris Speaker was the feature player with the old wagon tongue. He sized up the right field corner bleachers nicely and poled a couple of home runs in there in succession, once with one man on and the second time hitting the first ball pitched.

"Billy" Sunday was present with the Champions at their bench, and after Tris walloped the ball for his second homer, "Billy" said he wanted the bat and Tris gave it to him.

TRIS SWATS SPHERE.

[illegible] two runs [illegible] of nine bases and a [illegible] Tris also got the final [illegible] of the game, his only fielding [illegible]

[illegible] and Agnew were some stick[ers] also, each getting two clean ones, while Janvrin poled one, as did Gardner and Barry. The Orioles pulled a couple of double plays, which cut off [illegible] chances.

The Champions put three runs across on three hits in the third inning. Agnew led off with a single and Shore dumped down a sacrifice. Hooper failed, rolling to McAvoy, but [illegible] came across with a single to left, putting Agnew over, taking second on the throw in, and scoring ahead of Speaker on Tris' first home run [illegible]

POLES TWO HOMERS.

Tris' second slam for the circuit was on the first ball served him in the [illegible] The final tally was [illegible] and helped by a pass to Henriksen, who was forced by [illegible] McNally lifted a pop fly to Fewster and then Agnew drove past the pitcher's box for a safe one. Del Gainer Wires Bill Nothing to Retirement Story

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

NEW YORK, April 6.—"All newspaper talk; nothing to it. Will write you tomorrow."

That's a copy of a telegram Manager Carrigan received from Del Gainer, the missing Red Sox, upon his arrival here last night from Baltimore.

"I haven't been worrying over Gainer's absence, knowing he was too loyal to the club to quit without letting me know it early," stated Carrigan. "His letter, which I guess I will receive in the morning, will clear up everything.

"Do I think Del is going to retire? No. He was one of the most enthusiastic members of our club last season and I don't expect him to get out of his spangles for a lot of summers to come."

KNABE NOT WANTED AND FIRED BY MORAN

Philadelphia, April 6.—Otto Knabe, the Phillies' former second-baseman and manager of the Baltimore Feds [illegible] has been released by Manager Moran. The National Commission ordered the Phillies' club to either offer Knabe a contract or release him. It elected to let Otto go and he is now free to pick his own berth.

BINGHAM FAVORS SWITCH

Harvard Track Captain Confident It is for the College's Best to Have Coaches in Control.

CAPTAIN BILL BINGHAM of the Harvard track team, who, when matters are a case of "right or might" in college affairs, is always on the side of the former, is in favor of stripping the captain of Harvard's crews of his present high power and delegating the same to the coach of the crew.

Bingham believes that [illegible] any team is as good as [illegible] effort make him and he has all he can do to practice himself, without spending his time telling the men for his team. Bingham says he would never dream of telling [illegible] Donovan how to [illegible] the track [illegible].

"When you know just where your place is in the world, you have found yourself," rang the matron's words. The world was a big place, but not so big after all, reflected the girl, if you are lucky enough to find your own corner.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TAKE A FIRM STAND

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a man in love with two girls. One girl I have known for years and never thought of being [illegible] with, she was a friend of my sister's and I just thought of her as a nice girl but not attractive. A girl friend came to live near her after they finished college and I fell in love with her. She is pretty and attractive and a brilliant talker. I told her I loved her, but did not tell her I wanted her to be my wife. She did not say [illegible] she was terribly [illegible] attentions to my old friend and her college friend. I had not been [illegible] when she enumerated [illegible] I realized that I had depended on her and that it would hurt me if I couldn't continue. I told her I thought of the other girl in a different way, but would always like her; that I was indebted to her for some of the best things in life and life without her friendly companionship would never [illegible] The girls have remained good friends, but my affections [illegible] changed. [illegible] my old friend but [illegible] would not accept [illegible] was sure there was nothing between her college friend and [illegible] if she would not have me anyway. I don't want to antagonize [illegible] I have to [illegible] would marry [illegible] very fortunate [illegible] she loved me [illegible] [illegible] I worried [illegible]

UNDECIDED.

YOU remind me of the "How happy [illegible] other, Were t'other dear charmer away."

Certainly you show very little strength of character in that you are afraid to risk losing the girl for whom you do not care seriously in an effort to win the girl for whom you really do care. Make up your mind which girl you really want for your wife and then set about winning her. Most decidedly you cannot attempt to carry on affairs with both. It seems a bit as if you were merely infatuated with the second girl and had genuine affection for the first. But on the other hand, the first girl may be [illegible] more than a habit with you. Stop vacillating, figure the thing out for yourself and then have the strength of character to abide by your own decision.

MARRIAGE ON $17 A WEEK

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man, twenty-three years of age, have a good, steady position, but earn only $17 per week. I have been keeping company with a young lady two years my junior, for four years. Now, what I would like to know [illegible] salary. As [illegible] little pessimistic about it. Do you think it would be fair on my part to marry her on these earnings, as long as she is willing?

I love this girl and know my love is reciprocated [illegible] not want to part.

ANXIOUS.

MARRIAGE on a sum as small as you are earning requires sacrifice of almost all social pleasures, economy, good management, patience and really devoted love. Besides these ideal qualities a basis of safety would be a little rainy day fund in the bank. If you have most [illegible] go [illegible] will you.

War Time Coinage

IRON [illegible] of coin [illegible] has produced [illegible] report Messrs. [illegible] ge & Co. of [illegible] in order to over[illegible] culty of providing [illegible] has printed ten designs of [illegible] ten, fifteen and twenty [illegible] nations of [illegible] postage stamp [illegible] per and by lettering [illegible] has authorized [illegible] as currency with [illegible] tender as silver [illegible]

Iron money [illegible] lation by Germany [illegible] The Federal Coun[illegible] the issue should [illegible] years after the cess[illegible] ties. A hundred million [illegible] pfennig pieces was the authorized extent of the issue.

Stone money, called "fei," is still used as the medium of exchange on the Island of Yap, one of the [illegible]line Islands, which passed from the Spanish to German sovereignty after the Spanish-American war, by purchase, and is now in possession of the British by capture. This stone money consists of large, solid stone wheels, ranging in diameter from one foot to twelve feet, having a central hole through which a pole can be inserted so as to convert the mass into "currency."

The value represented by the stone increases with its size, and the limestone, of which the "fei" is composed, must be of fine white grain to be considered good delivery. Yet there seems to be no real necessity for delivery at all, for it is quite customary to earmark money, as it were, and leave it in its old position outside the first owner's hut—an excellent provision, considering the bulkiness of the material.

The disappearance of [illegible] metallic currency in Mexico, owing to the amount of paper money put into circulation during the military struggle for the presidency of the republic, caused various expedients to be adopted, says Lloyd's Weekly News. Tramcar tickets have been used for small change, and cardboard money, about one inch by two inches in size, good for five to ten and twenty centavos, was issued by different leaders.

"Economy"

For real economy in war time the fact related in the following anecdote sets a mark.

They were two burly Anzacs, and they met for the first time since Gallipoli in the Strand. They had both lost a leg, and were walking on crutches. They stared at one another for some moments, and then the elder held out his hand.

"Gor' Billy," he exclaimed. "You're just the old man I wanted to meet. You're going to save me ten bob. Come inside." He pulled his friend into a neighboring bootshop.

"Here, what's the game?" said the other.

"Why, Billy, old son, don't you see, you've lost your left leg and I've lost me right, and as we always did take the same size in boots we can split a bloomin' pair between us!"

The Great Wall of China

The great wall of China at the Nankow pass. The great wall is fifteen hundred miles long, on the boundary between China and Mongolia. Averaging twenty-two feet in height and twenty feet wide, with towers every hundred yards, it is the most gigantic defensive work in the world, but is now for the most part in ruins except where it guards an important pass. This photograph was taken by Roy Chapman Andrews, of the American Museum of Natural History expedition.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

PERHAPS the most impressive work of human hands in all the world is the Great Wall of China. It is a thing to dream about. It is a kind of dream in itself, for until one has seen it one has only a half belief in its reality. It seems like an invention of the imagination rather than an actual achievement of man.

It belongs to Aladdin's world, in which impossible things were done by supernatural powers coming to the aid of favored human be[illegible] [illegible] piles of stone a few hundred [illegible] square at the base, but the great Chinese wall is a fortification of [illegible] aging twenty-two feet in height and twenty feet in width, along whose summit [illegible] roadway, protected by battlements, armies could march, hurrying this way or that to reach the point of [illegible]

Thousands of [illegible] placed a hundred yards apart, strengthened the wall and gave access to it from the inner side. It runs in serpentine curves over hills and mountains and across valleys [illegible]

It was a [illegible] war-wall between two nations, or peoples. It divided China from Mongolia, the land of Eastern Asiatic civilization from that of Central Asiatic barbarism. China protected itself with this astonishing wall upon the same principle by which Babylon and other ancient cities constructed their defences, only an entire country was walled in instead of a single town.

Photographs of the great wall, made by [illegible] American Museum of Natural History, show in what a surprising state of preservation [illegible] least over [illegible] In some places, where it was made of brick, it is now only a range of mounds. Passing through a mountain[illegible] by hills, then plunging [illegible] into a valley, then reappearing and [illegible] with its towers crowning commanding heights until the last distant glimpse shows it winding away over the far-off, dim horizon.

[illegible] ly good condition were erected in the fourteenth century A. D. In its time it seems to have been a satisfactory means of defence against the invasions of the savage Tartars, [illegible]

[illegible] we might find in ancient Chinese literature thrilling stories of the defence of the great wall, when hordes of wild-riders assailed it in vain.

But Chinese literature is mostly devoted to the discussion and illustration of moral virtues, the celebration of peaceful triumphs, and the lyrics of unambitious life. The wall was began two or three centuries after the time of Confucius, but this great national work did not change the current of literary [illegible] channels in which [illegible] moralists had [illegible]

Sometimes the emperors of China erected hunting lodges outside the [illegible] strong military [illegible] beyond [illegible] Readers of De Quincey's romantic history of the flight of the Torgote Tartars from the borders of Russia back to their old mother China, will recall the exciting experience of the Emperor Kien Long when he had ventured [illegible] beyond the [illegible] was [illegible] his "returning children" from the avenging pursuit of their fierce enemies, who had followed them thousands of miles with unabated fury. But at last "the ancient Children of the Wilderness [illegible] labors [illegible] under the [illegible] Wall."

Physical Preparedness---Breathing

By GRACE BURDETT,

Bachelor of Science in Physical Training at Columbia, and former physical instructor at Dana Hall School for Girls.

W[illegible] great task of home building [illegible] by sacrificing her own interest to the welfare of the family. The same idea dominates her feeling of patriotism. Martial glory makes no appeal to her. But she takes prompt alarm if danger threatens the home or State.

Physical preparedness is the great safeguard of a state. And physical preparedness should be fostered in the home.

Present conditions appeal urgently to the patriotism of the American [illegible] The subtle foe, luxury, [illegible] threatens the home, while the [illegible] seem slow to realize its own danger. The present wave of prosperity has brought in its wake the love of luxurious living, while the [illegible] of Europe are being hardened [illegible] the privations of war.

If people would get together and test out the result of the physical training already accomplished here, they would strengthen their own sinews and the nation would gain self-confidence. Mother and sister can encourage the children to con[illegible]

ALSO AIDS THE MIND

Proper physical exercise not only strengthens and beautifies the body, but it causes mental alertness.

The present day belongs to the mentally alert of both sexes. You [illegible] practiced [illegible] citizens.

The most useful exercises are those which can be used in daily life. Good posture can be learned by means of a few exercises and it is an important business asset. One is judged by the manner of holding one's body even more than by one's way of wearing one's clothes. A tall woman cannot afford to stand in a slovenly manner. A short woman needs every [illegible] of them are [illegible] themselves [illegible] for physi[illegible]

HOW TO BREATHE

[illegible] help posture [illegible] housekeep[illegible] breathing. The hairs in the nostrils filter the air on its way to the lungs, just as a wire screen filters the air as it comes in the window. The arch [illegible] of the lungs are germs and dust. The housekeeper's worst pests are flies and mosquitoes.

Exercise for nasal breathing:

1. Stand with the weight upon the balls of the feet.
2. Hold the chin [illegible]
3. Press the back of the neck up and back as if it were held in a tight collar.
4. Slowly [illegible]
5. Exhale.

This exercise, besides delivering clean [illegible] to the lung reservoir, trains one to hold the head properly. It pulls out the curve at the back of the neck with which so many women and girls are afflicted.

Ingratitude

A frugal and industrious shoemaker has two daughters of whom he is very proud. He provides a good home for them, dresses them well, and is giving them a good education.

Not long ago he drew on his modest bank account for a sum sufficient to purchase a new piano for them. What followed may be described in his own words.

"Oh, yes," he confided to a neighbor, "they were grateful enough for it, of course, and it's a great comfort to hear 'em play and sing, but what do you suppose was the first thing the girls learned on it?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said the neighbor.

"'Everybody Works but Father.'"

A Great Opportunity Awaits the Citizens of Massachusetts

THE citizens of Massachusetts next Fall will decide whether or not they want a Constitutional Convention which shall seek to modernize our State Constitution and to harmonize it with the changed conditions of the day, to remove its anachronisms, to make it the citadel of the great majority and not the lair of a highly organized predatory few in the community.

For more than a half a century we have not had a Constitutional Convention. We need one very badly. Only by such means can we cause to be submitted to the judgment of the people some of the great reforms that have agitated the Legislature for the last ten years and have been defeated by a pernicious lobby every year.

To Charles Sumner Bird, to former Senator Charles E. Burbank, to the masses of the Progressive party who stood behind them, to ex-Governor Walsh, who recommended it, and to the Progressive thousands who supported him, to Governor McCall, who has kept his faith and achieved it, and to the Boston AMERICAN, which has advocated it day after day for several years, comes the satisfaction of a great accomplishment.

The AMERICAN appreciates Governor McCall's gracious acknowledgment, by the gift of the pen which signed the bill, of the part which the AMERICAN played in the advancement of the cause of a Constitutional Convention.

If the citizens of Massachusetts are awake to the opportunity which this law affords them, Governor McCall's administration will be held by historians of the Commonwealth the most notable since the Civil War.

Public Ownership Would Cure Boston's Street Railway Troubles

THE complaints of the citizens of East Boston against the service of the Boston Elevated, since the abolition of the tunnel tolls, seem to be well founded. Yet the complaints in East Boston are but symptomatic of complaints in the other parts of the city. Doubtless much of this discontent is unjust, but where there is so much smoke there must be some fire.

The Elevated replies to the demand for better service that better service costs more money, and that the Elevated is now struggling to make both ends meet. It points out that its common stock is far below par, and that this is the best evidence that competent investors believe the road to be sailing very closely to the wind. The street railway company also asserts that it cannot borrow money upon profitable terms on account of its impoverished condition, and that it cannot give better service until it can obtain money at something less than sacrificial cost.

All this may be true and yet not be a sufficient answer to the public complaints against bad service. All public service corporations must give at least tolerable service. Something surely ought to be done to bring this question to a climax and to settle it.

Public ownership would clearly be the best settlement of this important and perplexing problem of metropolitan transportation. It is perfectly practicable, not in the future, but NOW. The city of San Francisco, which within a few years was among the most corrupt cities in America, has taken over one of its principal street railway lines because its managers were not serving the public satisfactorily. San Francisco is today operating that railroad to the perfect satisfaction of the people and with profit to the city.

If, however, the citizens of Massachusetts are not progressive enough and courageous enough to cure the evil by eradicating it, with public ownership and operation, they must face the alternative. Either the Elevated is being very uneconomically managed or its income is not enough to render the kind of service which the people of Boston demand. It is unprofitable and foolish to continue treating the situations which are arising in South Boston, Dorchester, Roxbury, East Boston and everywhere on the system as local sores. They are simply the eruptions of a deep-seated trouble with the Elevated.

The approaching termination of the wage agreement between the Elevated and its employes is not making the difficulty less perplexing. With the cost of living still increasing, it is natural to expect that the men will ask for more wages. Some time, the sooner the better, there must be a thorough diagnosis of the disease which is wasting the Elevated. The Elevated itself ought to see that public irritation will never subside until the public knows the real conditions. So long as they believe that the Elevated can afford better service they will demand it, as indeed they ought to demand it.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Old 'Uns

Colonel Dodd, who led the wonderful march into Mexico, must shortly retire because he has reached the age limit—sixty-three.

THEY'RE good for twenty-mile a day across the alkali
Beneath a sun that blazes hot and sizzling in the sky,
They're out o' camp at dawning, bracing up the rank and file,
Till they set out gay and cheery on another eighty-mile.
But their Uncle Sam has noticed that their hair is getting white
And he's listed them for shelving—"Sixty-three—too old to fight."

WHAT the old campaigns have taught them of the way to handle men,
All the little tricks of fighting they have picked up now and then,
All the iron-wrought endurance that has sent them o'er the plain,
All the grit and skill and courage war has given them in vain,
Uncle Sam has taken notice that their years are past three score,
So he solemnly informs them he don't need them any more.

HINDENBURG, along past eighty, chased the Russians off the map
And is usually accounted as a fairly game old chap.
Many a silver-topped commander in the European row
Is engaged in teaching warfare to admiring youngsters now.
But it's different with our army—though a man is game and fit;
When he has that fatal birthday Uncle Sam says sternly, "Quit!"

Why Bother About It?

Perhaps the Democrats can safely leave the carrying out of that one-term plank to the electorate, in this particular instance, anyway.

The Fear of Poison

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

PART ONE.

HUMANITY does not display judgment in its fears. While, in the main, its instincts as to what is wholesome and what is harmful, what is to be welcomed and what is to be dreaded, are sound because they are based upon the experience of thousands of generations past, it still has an astonishing capacity for exaggerating the dangerousness of harmful things and even vividly dreading the wrong things altogether.

One of the most striking illustrations of highly exaggerated fear of real dangers is our fear of being poisoned either accidentally or by evil intent.

The very name, poison, sends a shudder through our veins and puts us into a frame of mind where rational and dispassionate thinking is most difficult.

The dread goes back such a tremendous distance and is so entwined about the deepest fibres of our being that the mere thought of poison sets up vibrations in us which "wireless" back to the very dawn of human experience.

The Early Fairy Tales

From earliest infancy our minds have been crammed by those distressing survivals from a much better forgotten past—called myth and legend and fairy tale (and Bible story)—with horrifying tales of poisoning by fascinating but deadly fruits, by the bite of flying and other imaginary serpents, by the stroke of envenomed daggers or enchanted swords, or by that famous universal refrigerant and sedative, the "cup of cold poison," whether at the Borgia's board or from the taper fingers of the enchantress.

The renowned episode in the Garden of Eden, for instance, is merely one of a hundred variants of the primitive legend of the beautifully colored fruit whose eating brought death into the world, probably in the beginning based upon the disastrous result of some actual early dietetic experiment.

A Real Fear Basis

Of course there is a real basis in fact for part of this vivid fear and dread, because poisons do exist in considerable variety upon all sides of us, particularly in our food and drink, and it is well to be on our guard against them.

But the point simply is that the actual part played in the death rate and disease rate by poisons, whether animal, vegetable or mineral, is far, far smaller than our inherited dreads would lead us to believe.

We are not, of course, considering here the toxins or poisons of infectious diseases, or the putrefactive poisons of spoiled or tainted food, which are a very real and important source of danger; but only what are popularly known as poisons, that is to say, substances which in small amounts would cause serious danger to life.

Inklings and Thinklings

By Wex Jones

Referring to a Supreme Court decision, a New Jersey dispatch says: "The court took judicial notice of the fact that hard cider is intoxicating." Intoxicating—pooh! Wines and liquors are intoxicating; hard cider is far more than that. It throws its temerarious consumer into transports of delirious ecstasy, in which butting a stone fence with his head soothes like the caresses of a loved one. Intoxicating!—we fear the court spoke with judicial cognizance, perhaps, but certainly without practical knowledge.

Rio de Janeiro dispatch refers to President Braz, of Brazil. Which is named after which?

Mental Concentration Key to Happiness

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Shows That Constant Thought on Higher Things Takes Men and Women Out of Ruts of Monotony and Puts Hope in Place of Despair

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, Star Co.

AWAY off in a little country town in California a mechanic's wife with a craving mind and a hungry heart is wondering what she can do to better herself mentally. "Living among people who care only to work and save, I have no pleasure, and confess that I am very discontented with my lot," she writes. "Can you tell me what to do to get what I want?"

Her case is typical of thousands of growing souls all over this great, ambitious, restless land. The money ambition has hold of our men, the ambition for mental advancement has possession of our women.

To this woman, and to all like her, it is seemingly useless to say, "Learn the law of mental concentration," unless that law is explained. It sounds much like the old orthodox promise of happiness in heaven to the restless, discontented mind.

Yet in that law lies all the hope of bettering such conditions. I have known a brilliant, strong-willed, ambitious woman to beat her life out against the walls of such an environment, with useless rebellion and unfocused longing.

Nothing came which she desired and every hope receded into the dim horizon of the unattainable.

Had this woman used in concentrated hope and fixed purpose the same amount of energy she exhausted in rebellion and discontent, all she desired would have come to her in time.

Thought is one form of energy.

That is a scientific fact, and must be remembered. If we waste our energy in discontent and rebellion against fate, we do not have it to use in shaping new conditions.

Instead of despising and hating what we have, there is great wisdom in seeking for something to love, something to be glad about in our environment and to steadily turn our thoughts toward the time when whatever we want shall come to us.

Once we find the central thought of love, it will become like the first star of evening, or the first dim ray of light at dawn, and will prove the harbinger of a glorious effulgence if we continue to gaze.

To love something is the first step toward success and happiness. The more we love the more success and happiness will be ours. Love is constructive, hate destructive; love constructs our own creative powers, and hate destroys them.

However uncongenial may be our surroundings, we can never hate them into better conditions. We can love them into better conditions. Let the discontented woman say as she goes about her daily tasks, "I am creating a beautiful home, a beautiful life, for my loved ones and for myself. All that I desire shall come to me. It is here already, only my eyes are not clear enough to see. Love, peace, happiness, beauty, rest, refinement are all mine."

However meagre or repulsive even may be her outlook, if she will insist upon these assertions and these thoughts, and continue to picture to herself the surroundings she desires, a change will come. It may be slow, and by degrees, or may be by leaps, but it will come.

Two years ago a business man was in the depths of despair, and nothing but trouble and discord enveloped him. He was given the key to better conditions by a friend who wrote out for him a list of words to say and meditate upon.

Instead of thinking of things as he found them, he thought of them as he desired them. Employment, success, prosperity, harmony, growth, happiness, opulence were the words given him for his rosary. At first, in derision, then in amusement, then in curiosity, he began to repeat the words.

Suddenly he felt a great calmness resulting from their repetition. Then, with renewed interest, he continued, and new strength seemed to be given him. Hope followed, and the ambitions he had thought dead awoke to life.

Prosperity came next, and affluence stands near today.

The discontented woman should seek for cheerful, helpful literature while she waits for her life to blossom into happiness. Every library in our land today should classify its books so that optimistic volumes can be found as easily as the poetry, history or philosophy. More and more the world wants this mental food.

There are many periodicals that offer a helpful, hope-building literature to weary, worried minds. These are all props for the growing soul before it has learned to journey alone toward Truth.

"Seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you."

In April

By Jane McLean

DEAR HEART, we'll steal a day of days
While April's mood is fair,
To tread the old forgotten ways,
And find what's hidden there.

Here is our beech tree, and the pool,
Its limpid waters rimmed
With slim moss fingers, green and cool,
Its cloistered surface dimmed.

Here is arbutus, wet and sweet,
And pussywillows gray;
And hark the creep of fairy feet
Adown the forest way.

Only the half-forgotten wood,
A day in Spring, and we;
But April's heart has understood
The love of memory.

In-Shoots

A man can employ a male stenographer and still have a lot of romance in his system.

When Hope retires Satan generally has an easy time landing 'em.

There is generally something about every reformer that some other reformer would like to reform.

When a married man begins to run out nights he is color blind to the red danger signals.

A mental weakling can often have a backbone as stiff as a concrete gate post.

Lots of our friends do not seem disposed to work at it.

Religion that will change one's nature is more than skin deep.

The most charming conversationalist spends most of the time listening.

As a rule, the girl who marries the only son of a doting mamma is entering upon a strenuous contract.

Were it not for the streak of romance in the human family, fortune tellers would have a hard time earning their daily boiled cabbage.
